Shedding Stops Wedding

SAIGON (AP) — A wedding 50 miles northwest of Saigon was broken up recently when the bridegroom's spurned common-law wife crashed the ceremony and did a strip tease.

The bridegroom, a mechanic named Le Ngoc, was just about to tie the nuptial knot when his uninvited common-law wife appeared. As she stripped and danced, she sang that Le Ngoc had abandoned her with two children.

The bride fled.

Jury Out For Night In Seattle

SEATTLE (AP) — The federal court jury deliberating the fate of 51-year-old John Wasylenchuk went to bed without reaching a decision Friday night.

The case was thrown into confusion when juror William Roper said he was ill shortly after the jury began its deliberations of the murder and robbery charges against the Canadian parolee.

Judge William Lindberg advised an alternate, but it was then discovered that alternates may not be seated in a federal case after the jury has received the case.

SENT FOR DOCTOR

The only solution seemed to be to declare a mistrial or to get both sides to agree to an 11-man jury. The defence declined the latter solution and Judge Lindberg sent for a doctor to examine Roper.

The doctor gave Roper a penicillin shot and pronounced him able to continue.

Vital Moment in History

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press

The new malevolent turn in relations between the Soviet Union and Red China dramatizes what is surely an epochal moment in history.

The rush of events in the last 30 years has brought the world — it seems suddenly — to a watershed of change in which political goals are being challenged everywhere.

British observers were deeply impressed by the recent speech of J. William Fulbright, chairman of the United States Senate foreign relations committee, who said his own country is clinging to old myths in the face of new realities.

Perhaps they are even more impressed by reaction to the speech, which indicated that some of what Fulbright said — particularly regarding Russia — is regarded as commonplace in the U.S. except in official pronouncements.

They are aware that Fulbright wasn't speaking for the U.S. administration — it would be more true to say he was speaking to it — but, as one periodical put it:

"The nub of what Mr. Fulbright had to say about relations with European communism — namely, that the Communist countries are diverse and need to be treated with discrimination — had been said previously in February and March by Mr. Dean Rusk, the secretary of state, and at least two other officials of the state department."

for Commons'

JOBLESS PAY BLOCKED

Meeting Today

Blue Monday For 46,000?

OTTAWA (UPI) — One determined senator Friday refused to give unanimous consent to pass a government bill to replenish the unemployment insurance fund, which will go bankrupt this weekend.

Senator Gratian O'Leary, the fiery Irish Conservative from Ottawa, told the Senate he would not allow passage of a special appropriation bill sent up from the Commons earlier in the day.

Members in the Commons had quickly passed the bill, which covers $131,000,000 of the $241,000,000 final supplementary estimates they had debated all week.

HOPES DASHED

But Senator O'Leary dashed their hopes for quick Senate approval and ascent last night. The Senate does not meet again until 8 p.m. Monday.

A labor department spokesman made it clear that, since the bill was not made law Friday, the Unemployment Insurance Commission would have no money to pay benefits Monday.

FROM ALL SIDES

Of the $131,000,000 total, up to $55,000,000 could be earmarked for the fund.

The Senate vibrated with criticism from all sides throughout the week because it was forced to sit idle during its Easter holidays while the Commons argued over the final supplementary estimates of last year.

Criticism continued Friday as once more it was asked to waive its rules and give immediate passage to the bill.

THREE DAYS

Under normal conditions the Senate would require two days' notice for second reading of a bill and another day for third and final reading.

To operate any other way requires unanimous consent from all senators.

Sensor O'Leary had given notice Tuesday he would resist further Commons attempts to treat the upper chamber as a "messenger boy" and a "mere gramophone" for the Commons.

SHORTEST SPEECH

The Commons proceedings of the past week had insulted and degraded parliament, he said.

Giving the shortest speech of the afternoon, he rose simply to say "I will not give consent to passage of this bill tonight on third reading."

He rejected an appeal from government Senator J. J. Connolly to reconsider his stand.

OWN ANNOYANCE

Sensor Connolly, who expressed his own annoyance at the way the Senate was treated by the Commons and kept waiting around all week long, said: "I think we all admire the stand he proposed to take on behalf of the Senate."

But he asked Senator O'Leary to reconsider in view of the urgency of approving the money for the unemployment fund.

But when Senator Connolly rose to seek unanimous consent, Senator O'Leary stood again and said: "No."

Sensor Connolly promised the senators he would urge his colleagues in the government to see if Commons rules can be altered so all money supply bills could be dealt with in the Commons.

'Unite Against Red China'

Khrushchev Fights Back

BUDAPEST (Reuters) — Soviet Premier Khrushchev has called for unity in the international Communist movement in the struggle against what he called Red Chinese "distortion." (See also Page 3.)

Khrushchev, addressing an audience in Budapest's State Opera House, accused the Communist Chinese leadership of trying to revise policy documents worked out jointly by the international movement.

The documents to which the Soviet leader referred were agreed upon at the world Communist conferences in Moscow in 1957 and 1960.

MASSIVE REPLY

The reference by Khrushchev to the Sino-Soviet ideological disputes followed the massive reply to Chinese attacks on him and his policies published earlier Friday by the Soviet Communist party newspaper Pravda.

Khrushchev, who is on an official visit to Hungary, said the materials published by Pravda made known the Soviet standpoint.

POLICY DISRUPTIVE

He accused the Chinese of a "disruptive policy" and said the only basis for the struggle against it was to strengthen and consolidate unity among the Communist parties.

Khrushchev said this struggle would certainly lead to a new victory for socialism, which would be of historical significance.

He was glad that in all questions of the international Com-

Leakey and Homo Habilis Jaw

Giant Leap Into History

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dr. Louis S. B. Leakey, a British anthropologist, announced Friday discovery in East Africa of a new species of primitive man he believes to be the direct ancestor of modern man.

Fossil parts of five individuals were found in Tanganyika by Dr. Leakey and his wife Mary, he said.

The discoveries "may rank some day as the most important in our knowledge" of the National Geographic Society, which supports his work.

The new species, he said, is almost 2,000,000 years old and adds about 1,500,000 years to the ancestry of man.

He called the new species "homo habilis," meaning a man able to do things.

Leakey said it now seems likely the species of present-day man, known as homo sapiens, is more likely to have evolved in Africa from homo habilis than from some of the other hominids of the pithecanthropus type in the Far East.

Jittery Alaskans Run Into Streets

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Anchorage, heavily damaged by an earthquake a week ago, was shaken sharply Friday by another tremor that sent jittery residents streaming into the streets.

Police said they had no immediate reports of injuries and said a quick survey showed areas which had suffered heavily a week ago apparently escaped further damage.

And Now It's Wind

KODIAK (AP) — One fishing boat was sunk, another capsized and 16 forced onto the rocks Thursday night when a vicious wind struck this town, still stunned from the effects of Friday's earthquake and tidal wave.

Valdez, devastated a week ago, reported the quake was felt there but it was a light tremor with no injuries or further damage reported.

The University of Washington said the shock measured 7.5 on its Richter scale, making it the largest of more than 50 aftershocks since the Good Friday tremor. The destructive quake hit 8.7 on the scale.

The latest casualty figures for the entire quake area show 123 dead or missing and presumed dead.

Meanwhile, Soviet Premier Khrushchev is visiting Hungary which only eight years ago was munist workers' movement the Soviet and Hungarian parties' views were identical.

Earlier, Khrushchev praised Janos Kadar, Hungary's premier, on whom he had conferred the title of Hero of the Soviet Union and The Order of Lenin.

These honors, the Soviet leader said, were in recognition of Kadar's outstanding merits as a great son of the Hungarian people, a friend of the Soviet Union and an outstanding fighter for the international workers' movement.

Khrushchev said international tension had relaxed recently and this was a real result of the policy of peaceful coexistence.

He said it would be a mistake, however, to relax the struggle for peace because imperialism was ready to make use of any opportunity to realize its "aggressive" plans.

The greatest imperialist danger came from the United States, Khrushchev continued. But the time had now gone when imperialists could carve up the map of the world as they wished, he added.

regarded as the most squalid example of Communist oppression. Now it is hailed for its independence of spirit in the Communist context.

"Budapest, rather to its own surprise, suddenly finds itself regarded as some sort of Paris of Eastern Europe," says the London Daily Mail. "It has become the most cosmopolitan of all capitals in the Communist bloc. It is also far and away the gayest."

ANTI-WHITE DRIVE

It seems only yesterday that the Soviet Union was seen as the sole savior of new countries of Africa and Asia. Now a Soviet delegate says after an Afro-Asian conference that Communist China is trying to unite the yellow and black races against whites.

He said: "The national socialist propaganda of the Chinese is not only dangerous for the Soviet Union but for all countries of Europe and elsewhere. It is hatred they are fomenting."

MILDER INSULT

Can anyone imagine the term national socialist—Nazis—being used during their love affair only a few years ago?

But that insult is milder than Peking's denunciation of Khrushchev who is leading the Soviet Union on the road back to capitalism.

So vast are the changes that some observers are already talking in terms of a future struggle between Russia and the U.S. on the one hand and Red China on the other—a concept earlier mentioned by President de Gaulle.

Anthony Wedgwood Benn, British Labor member of Parliament, writes in the Manchester Guardian: "We shall gain nothing from a new cold war between rich, militarily strong whites led by America and Russia and the non-white majority of the world's population pledged, under Chinese leadership, to global revolution."

"Yet that is just what will inevitably happen if China continues to be isolated, and the basic problems of racial oppression and world poverty are not effectively tackled."

City Professor Given Canada Council Grant

An associate professor at the University of Victoria has been awarded a Canada Council grant to do Shakespearean research in California this summer.

Dr. Rodney Poisson will go to the Huntington Library at San Marino, Calif., to do research on heroic characters in Shakespeare's works. Dr. Poisson teaches English at UVic and specializes in Shakespeare.

The $700 grant is Dr. Poisson's second from the Canada Council. He received a similar one to work at the University of Washington in 1958.

Dr. Poisson has already written one article connected with the project on which he will be working this summer. It will appear in a volume of Shakespearean criticism to be published by the University of Oregon.

Dr. Poisson is a graduate of the University of B.C. and received his doctorate at the University of Washington.

Whites to Tutor Negroes

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. (AP)—Growing out of racial demonstrations of the last week is a plan for white college students and teachers to live with and tutor St. Augustine's Negro youth this summer.

Demonstrations that resulted in the arrest of nearly 300 white and Negro integrationists appeared to have been, at least for the present, called off.

Most of the visiting northerners, of whom Mrs. Malcolm Peabody as mother of Massachusetts Governor Endicott Peabody became the central figure, returned to their homes and college campuses.

The demonstrations produced no integration of privately-owned facilities nor a bi-racial committee such as was formed in Jacksonville last week.

Rev. Bernard Lee, an aide to Negro leader Martin Luther King, said the desegregation campaign in this oldest city of the U.S. would continue. But he was not definite about the tactics.

"Our plans for this summer are quite tentative," said William Senterfitt, a Yale student who has been special assistant to Dr. R. B. Hayling, St. Augustine's principal.

gustine Negro dentist and local integration leader.

"We are aiming to have at least 20 persons, possibly 30 or more, come here to work for a period of four to 10 weeks this summer," Senterfitt said.

Coffin Assault Verbal

QUEBEC (CP)—Jean-Charles Vanhoute, a Provincial Police officer, said Friday Wilbert Coffin suffered no physical violence but only verbal assault during a 15-hour interrogation which preceded his arrest on a coroner's warrant.

Coffin, a prospector, was hanged Feb. 10, 1894, for the murder of one of three Pennsylvania hunters found dead in 1893 in heavy forest in Quebec's Gaspé area.

Assistant-Inspector Vanhoute, then a constable, was testifying at a Quebec Royal commission inquiring into the handling of the case which led to Coffin's conviction and hanging.

He said that the 15-hour verbal assault included repetition of the question: "Why did you kill them?"

He was brought in to testify about allegations made by Toronto journalist John Edward Belliveau in his book, 'The Coffin Murder Case,' and by Montreal author Jacques Hebert in his book, 'J'accuse les Assassins de Coffin (I Accuse the Assassins of Coffin).'

Both authors said the police showed Coffin water or cigarettes when he asked for them but then snatched these away from him. The authors said Coffin was questioned under a 300-watt light bulb. Mr. Belliveau said the police slapped him when he fell asleep from fatigue.

Desperate Croup Cases Only Ones for Surgery

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

We may not hear as much about croup as formerly, but it hasn't by any means disappeared. Quite often it goes under some other name these days.

Croup is laryngitis in a child. The entrance to the larynx becomes red and swollen, along with the vocal cords. The swelling partially obstructs the larynx, which is quite small.

USUALLY OUTGROWS

That is why the little one has to struggle for breath with the characteristic "croupy" cough and wheezing. That is also why a child usually outgrows croup by the age of three or four.

A letter inquires: "Is it true many children with croup are rushed to the hospital for an operation?"

Not many, but sometimes, in desperate cases, when the child can't get enough breath, a tracheotomy (opening of the windpipe) is necessary.

Some children have repeated attacks; others never have it. The reason for this is not clear. The cause of croup is infection—a cold, flu virus, streptococcus infection, occasionally diphtheria.

If infection is the cause, croup is invariably preceded by a cold, flu, sore throat or similar illness, even though mild.

INHALE STEAM

First treatment is to inhale steam, perhaps with a bit of benzoin added to the water. Cold packs on the neck are an old-time remedy which I have seen used successfully. Poultices on the chest can help, too.

To induce vomiting, is another old remedy. The doctor should determine the proper dose.

Antibiotics or sulfa are in order to treat the underlying cause. If viruses are involved, the drugs won't affect them but will suppress secondary bacterial infections.

Attacks similar to croup can come because a child has swallowed a bead, button, small toy or any object that can get caught in the throat.

Dear Dr. Molner: If someone suffers a heart attack can a person at the scene administer external heart massage and expect it to do any good?—J. R.

Anyone not trained in the right way would doubtless do more harm than good.

Dear Dr. Molner: About a month ago I had a stroke. As a result my right hand is lame and my speech has been affected. Can this cause a heart attack or can it ever happen again?—J. M.

A stroke does not cause heart attack. Yes, it can happen again but doesn't necessarily do so.

House and move to the Senate at least one week before a planned adjournment.

He said this would get around the necessity of the Senate having to wait around during a recess.

"Perhaps all (Common) parties will see the wisdom and appropriateness of making a change of this kind," he added.

The Senate then turned around and passed a second appropriation bill which came up from the Commons. This one covered estimates passed during the day, including payments to war veterans.

"I didn't give a damn about the second bill," said Senator O'Leary outside the Senate. "I wanted to establish a principle on the first that we won't be pushed into these things. The government said it was urgent, but we know it is not really urgent at all."

"We showed them we could hold up a bill and let the governor-general wait outside the door," he said.

Back in the Commons, New Democrat Stanley Kneave's brought general laughter when he announced he has filed a private bill calling for the abolition of the Senate.

Another New Democrat, Frank Howard (Skeena), immediately issued an angry statement charging Senator O'Leary had acted in a "disgraceful manner which one wouldn't expect from the most peevish and spoiled child."

"Tory Senator O'Leary, from his cushy life-time position at $15,000 a year, bears the sole responsibility for denying thousands of unemployed in Canada their few dollars unemployment insurance benefits," Howard said.

"We in the House of Commons co-operated in every way to ensure the fund would have sufficient money in it to pay benefits for us, realized the urgency involved and the privation which would result if such action was not taken."

Adlai Warns U.S.

'Be Ever More Vigilant'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Adlai Stevenson, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, warned Friday that the current Russia-Red China rift should not "lull us into a false sense of security."

Red Split No Help Rusk Says

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk yesterday cautioned against any expectation that Russia's widening split with Red China will lead to any dramatic improvement in relations between Moscow and Washington.

In fact he told a news conference, the Sino-Soviet breach probably was one of the reasons there has been no great progress toward settling major issues between the United States and the Soviet Union.

He said Russia was preoccupied with the mounting feud between Premier Nikita Khrushchev and the militant Chinese Reds who have called for "liquidation" of the Russian leader's policy of peaceful co-existence.

Russians Seek Help In Europe

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union campaigned yesterday for East European support in what it predicted would be a "grim and apparently long struggle" with Communist China.

The government newspaper Izvestia published expressions of support for the Kremlin policy of peaceful co-existence from Russian laborers, scientists and foreign communists in Bulgaria, Mongolia and Hungary.

FAST ACTION

Most of East Europe speedily reported the historic anti-Chinese declaration of chief Soviet ideologist Mikhail Suslov challenging China to a face-to-face meeting.

Publication itself was an indication of support for Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev's peaceful many went a step further to co-existence line and East Germany make this clear.

The East German news agency ADN prefaced the 30,000-word Suslov statement with the remark it "comprises a critique and political evaluation of the false, anti-Leninist attitudes of the Chinese Communist Party leadership."

Alderman to Ask Council Pay Hike

VANCOUVER (CP) — A notice of motion will be filed by Ald. Phillip Lipp asking a 33 per cent increase in the pay of Mayor Bill Rathie and aldermen.

The increase would take the mayor's salary from $12,000 to $16,000 and aldermen's from $3,600 to $4,800, new maximums set by city charter amendment passed by the legislature.

Greeks Open Fire On Peace Enforcers

NICOSIA, Cyprus (UPI) — United Nations officials said Greek Cypriots opened fire and planned down British paratroopers of the U.N. peace force Friday during an hour-long battle in which a Greek and a Turkish Cypriot were killed and two Turks wounded.

CHALLENGE

None of the British troops was hit, but the UN sources said the Greek Cypriots deliberately fired repeatedly at the blue beret-clad men in what appeared to be the most serious challenge to the UN peace-keeping operation since it went into action.

The UN sources said the British were trying to rescue a wounded Cypriot in the village of Ayla Marina in the northwest corner of the island. They blamed the heavy firing on Greek Cypriot police and "irregulars" and said the wounded man received no treatment.

A senior UN officer conferred with Greek Cypriot Interior Minister Polycarpus Georgiadis, who controls the police force. Informed sources said he accused the Greek Cypriots of "deliberately and knowingly" firing on the Britons.

It was the second shooting incident reported Friday. Earlier, a Cypriot was killed and two were wounded in fighting on the north coast of Cyprus at the village of Kato Pyrgos.

NEW CRISIS?

The outbreak flared amid reports that President Archbishop Makarios was preparing to renounce unilaterally the 1960 treaties under which Greece and Turkey are allowed to station troops on this strife-torn Mediterranean island.

Such a move, diplomatic sources said, would certainly bring bitter reaction from Turkey and create a new major crisis even before UN mediator Sakari Tuomioja of Finland began his peace efforts.

U.S., Panama Agree To Resume Relations

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and Panama agreed Friday to end at once their 11-week breach of diplomatic relations and to discuss promptly differences which were climaxed in bloody January rioting in the Central American country.

An agreement to restore relations severed Jan. 17 and to seek a settlement of long-standing disputes was signed at the Pan American Union amid considerable fanfare.

President Johnson then talked by telephone with Panama's President Roberto Chiari.

A short time later, Johnson designated Robert B. Anderson, former treasury secretary, as the special U.S. emissary to seek an end to differences which go back to the 1903 treaty which gave the U.S. perpetual control of the Panama Canal Zone.

"This is truly a great day for the American people, for Panama, for all the Western Hemisphere and for all freedom-loving people everywhere," said Johnson.

Disruptive Red Strike Falls Short

ROME (AP) — A Communist-led strike of government workers disrupted railway traffic Friday but fell far short of the hoped-for show of force against Premier Aldo Moro's government.

Non-Communist unions refused to join the walkout and Italo Vigilantes, a Democratic Socialist union leader, called the strike "a farce."

A mass meeting by the Communists in the heart of Rome was a flop.

The Communists vowed to disrupt Moro's government after he formed a coalition of his Christian Democrats with the Socialists, once allied with the Communist party.

Better... or Worse?

SEVENTEEN Canadian universities—among them the new Simon Fraser—along with 75 American universities are planning to institute a year-round calendar in order to cope with the anticipated increase in student enrolment which is expected to jump in British Columbia alone from 17,000 this year to 37,000 by 1971.

Those who advocate this idea of a more intensive work year for university students, maintain that not only does it make economic sense but is academically desirable. They claim that under the suggested trimester system of three 16-week terms a dedicated student can complete a normal four-year course in under three years, thereby considerably increasing the present rate of graduate output.

To date, most of the champions and the detractors of the scheme have come from within the ranks of the universities themselves. However, a new supporter of the accelerated program emerged last week in Winnipeg in the shape of Mr. William Thomson, director of Canada's National Employment Service.

Taking a very practical approach to the subject, Mr. Thomson said that the problem of finding summer employment for university students is becoming more difficult each year, due to the fact that university enrolment is steadily on the increase and that summer jobs looked for by students are usually in the semi-skilled or unskilled categories, where there is already a surplus of applicants.

The answer to this, he said, may lie partly in interest-free loans to students, but the real solution would be for the universities to operate on a year-round basis through which students could cut the four-year course to three years to the advantage of the students and the economy as a whole.

As Mr. Thomson presumably sees it, the economic benefits would be derived from the fact that students (or their sponsors) would only have to pay for three years of university instruction instead of four to achieve the same end result. But just how valid an argument would this be in practice?

University teachers now put in an average of eight months' work in their college departments. Under the present system they are able to spend their long summer break in other related or unrelated fields usually resulting in considerable monetary or academic remuneration.

If they are now to be called upon to put in an additional quarter of a year at their university posts this practice would be denied them and in compensation they would most certainly demand—and be entitled to—a substantial salary increase, the costs of which would likely more than offset any financial benefits of a shorter degree course accruing to the students.

Further to this, the nation-wide adoption of such a plan would effectively prevent any student from following the time-honored course of working his way through college. This would mean that all those who might have wholly or partly paid for their higher education would have no alternative but to borrow from the federal government's proposed university loan fund.

Thus, instead of graduating with a paid-up degree, free of encumbrances and full of hope, they would be hopelessly saddled with a debt which could amount to anything up to $6,000.

What a way for our youngsters to start out.

Beyond the Bounds

THE ONTARIO government through its premier, John Robarts, has stated a principle at the federal-provincial conference, that if any one province can opt out of federal-provincial programs, then Ontario too must claim that right.

The premier added that because Ontario was not willing to go into the federal pension plan if Quebec did not, his province should not be accused of breaking up confederation.

In the west, at least, there will be some sympathy for Premier Robarts' contention that: "We are convinced that an arrangement under which one province and only one province consistently contracts out of federal services would not be good for any of us. It would isolate that province from the rest of Canada. It would drive a wedge between us. It would make for disunion, rather than union."

Mr. Robarts' "disunion" fears loom even more menacingly when they are laid alongside Quebec's aspirations as set out in a recent address in Montreal by Marcel Faribault, a notable French-Canadian who is president of General Trust Company.

Mr. Faribault said the following Canadian constitutional principles "no longer make any sense" to him:

- (1) That the Canadian constitution should be similar to that of the U.K. when the U.K. is unitary and Canada is federal.
- (2) That the executive government authority is still vested in the Queen.
- (3) That the privileges, immunity and powers of the Senate and Commons may never exceed those of the British House of Commons.
- (4) That the federal government is the only one in Canada responsible for peace, order and good government (sic).
- (5) That the residuary powers lie and can be left to the federal government.
- (6) That the provinces may not levy moneys except by direct taxation.
- (7) That the fiscal powers of the provinces are subservient to those of the federal government who may tax at will.
- (8) That the federal government may disallow an act adopted by a province within its own field of jurisdiction.

Mr. Faribault seeks a new constitution as the price of keeping Quebec within confederation, but his thesis on provincial power is such that the resultant federal government would be less than a rubber stamp, and Canada instead of having a united nine provinces and one dissident, would have ten different entities.

The price Mr. Faribault is asking the Canadian majority to accept is beyond the bounds of realism. Mr. Robarts is one hundred per cent correct in claiming that what is good for one must be good for all.

Looking for a Scapegoat

By RICHARD JACKSON

Columnist Ottawa Bureau

FORMER Conservative Labor Minister Michael Starr, no swinging political partisan, is a man of quiet competence. Of the cabinet stature built emotionally and intellectually after the fashion of the late Liberal Revenue Minister Jack Garland. Personal popularity with men of this kind, reasonable, understanding, tolerant, middle of the road politicians, crosses all party lines.

They speak with the calm voice of reason. So when Mike Starr comes out swinging—that is, swinging for HIM as a mild and moderate man—his words could be worth some attention.

He has detected what he views as a change of government direction on the bilingual and bicultural issue that has been building slowly, but not surprisingly, into something of a politically explosive question, especially across the prairies, on the west coast, in some sections of the Maritimes, and even — to hear certain worried Liberal backbenchers tell it—in parts of Ontario.

With such Liberal MPs as Ottawa's Lloyd Francis, and Toronto's Ralph Cowan and Stephen Orto publicly kicking over the bilingual traces, the government seems to be shying away from the issue and looking for a convenient scapegoat.

Seems that, aided and abetted by, of all government agencies, the CBC, the administration has been discovering just such a scapegoat.

The CBC itself, in its National Evening News, with reporter-announcer Ken Mason pointing the finger, elected what it called "the newspapers" for the role.

Government spokesmen, not excluding Prime Minister Pearson himself and other members of the cabinet, had been speaking, in various public appearances, about the press "playing up" what they have called "the extremists" on both sides of the administration-initiated "bilingual dialogue."

But it was left to that federal agency—and even the CBC can't deny that it IS a Crown corporation—to harden, to firm up the innuendo about the supposed "sensationalism" daily press.

As the Royal Commission on Biculturalism and Bilingualism made its way across the country listening to the voice of the people, intoned Mason on the CBC network's national news show, the nuts, the crackpots, the screwballs, in short, "the extremists" would grab and monopolize the newspaper headlines.

The inference was that the whole thing would be distorted by the Big Type on the Front Page, with all the irrational and "way out" opinions magnified out of all reasonable proportion. As Mike Starr says: "Look who's talking!"

Wasn't it the CBC that put Separatist Marcel Chaput on its national TV network to air his views of the Queen, and gave coast-to-coast television and radio exposure in news clips and set and formal interviews to other "quiet revolutionaries" among the Quebec go-it-aloners? Yes, the CBC and now other.

Shoulder flashes on the uniforms of Parliament's own "Protective Staff," the private police force that guards the House of Commons, used to be in English on one shoulder, French on the other. Now, to keep everybody happy, they've got BOTH languages on BOTH shoulders.

State Secretary Maurice Lamontagne, spearhead of biculturalism in the cabinet, insisted that the little brass plate on his Centre Block office door, which used to say President of Privy Council on top with the French translation underneath, be scrapped and a new one prepared with French on top and English beneath.

When he switched from Privy Council to state secretary, the plate in required French-then-English sequence, of course, could be made to order.

French senators from Quebec, who, since Confederation began, never went on any available Parliamentary record with objections to being called "senators," recently have had a change of heart. The plates on their Centre Block doors now set out the names in French: "L'honorable Sénateur."

Not that it make any real difference, one way or the other, except that it is an indication of the way the wind is blowing.

across Parliament Hill from La Belle Province.

It was just a year ago that Health Minister Judy LaMarsh, a self-confessed three-pack-a-day girl, took the pledge.

Happened quite by accident. A newsmag, scratching one dead afternoon for a bit of live copy, put the swear-off-smokes proposition, not really seriously, up to Miss Judy.

Quick, Mike, La Judy replied, sizing it up at once: "If I say I'm quitting or even thinking of quitting, then I'm stuck. Everybody in the country will be watching, and I couldn't possibly even sneak a smoke, could I?"

No, she couldn't, and that was sure.

"Okay, if it might have even the slightest influence on the kids," grinned Judy gamely, "then I'll quit."

And she did.

So how's she doing?

Just dandy, thanks. Never misses 'em now. Feels badly that she might have hurt Ontario's tobacco industry. For she meant only to crusade for the kids. Figured adults were old enough to take care of themselves and make up their own minds.

Outside of that aspect of it, Judy's well satisfied, convinced, or at least hoping that it has been the kids, mainly, who took her cue.

Personally she's looking fine and feeling great.

Even getting her weight—which climbed some when she swore off—under control again. She's confessed that in her weak moments—when she wanted to reach for a smoke instead of a snack—Prime Minister Pearson was her inspiration and chief cheering section.

He quit six years ago.

And how was it with him?

No sweat, his Man Friday, Dick O'Hagan, has reported. "He just quit, period. No strain."

"Never really inhaled. Just burned, not really smoked his way through two packs a day. Nervous habit more than an actual addiction. Decided it was not a useful habit. So just dropped it. Like that."

Only other feature about this conference is that the Communists have been and will continue doing everything they can to convince the new nations that the Western countries are indifferent to their problems and that only the Communist countries are interested and ready to help.

This is by now an old story and doubtless will not fool many of the new nations; yet if the West does nothing at the conference the Communists will certainly make gains.

For Canada—and for the world—it is of great importance that this United Nations conference be successful.

Canada recognized the insurgent government of General Franco 25 years ago today—in 1939—a few days after the end of the Spanish Civil War which lasted two years and 254 days. The war claimed an estimated 1,000,000 lives.

1933—The U.S. dignitary Akron crashed off the New Jersey coast in an electrical storm, killing 73. There were four survivors.

1950—The Indian government smashed a plot to assassinate Prime Minister Nehru and other Congress party leaders.

Also, we want new countries to buy our goods but how can they do so if they cannot sell their own to earn the purchase price?

And what is true of new Commonwealth countries is also true of all the other less developed nations. It has not been sufficient to free them—they must also be given a chance to progress. This is the main problem facing the United Nations trade and development conference. It will not be solved without the understanding and active help of the well-established countries such as Canada. In the shrunken world of today nations new and old are really all in the bag together.

trade conference but many of the so-called Western countries opposed the idea. They realized that in the final analysis concessions would be required of them if such a conference were held and that this would mean trouble with their own producers. It will be readily seen that the problem is not a simple one.

When the question was raised again in the Second Committee of the General Assembly in 1962 it became very clear that the new countries were in deadly earnest about such a conference and that something must be done to meet the situation they faced; accordingly our Canadian delegation helped frame a resolution calling for a conference in 1964 and we took an active part in getting this resolution accepted by the Second Committee and then by the General Assembly.

As a matter of fact we had run into the same question at the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference in London in September of that year. Led by the prime ministers of India and Nigeria and the president of Pakistan, the new nations of the Commonwealth had stressed the impossible position in which their countries would be placed if larger markets were not quickly found for their raw and semi-manufactured products. They also advocated some plan for stabilizing commodity prices at a fair level.

The older countries of the Commonwealth, Britain, Canada, Australia and New Zealand were very much impressed by these submissions and I am sure realize the importance and urgency of finding a solution.

We have been helping these new fellow-members of the Commonwealth to develop their countries—and rightly so—but if they cannot sell their products the whole scheme collapses.

trade conference but many of the so-called Western countries opposed the idea. They realized that in the final analysis concessions would be required of them if such a conference were held and that this would mean trouble with their own producers. It will be readily seen that the problem is not a simple one.

When the question was raised again in the Second Committee of the General Assembly in 1962 it became very clear that the new countries were in deadly earnest about such a conference and that something must be done to meet the situation they faced; accordingly our Canadian delegation helped frame a resolution calling for a conference in 1964 and we took an active part in getting this resolution accepted by the Second Committee and then by the General Assembly.

As a matter of fact we had run into the same question at the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference in London in September of that year. Led by the prime ministers of India and Nigeria and the president of Pakistan, the new nations of the Commonwealth had stressed the impossible position in which their

Purple Heart Gulpers Defy Death

By MARISS BOGGS

LONDON (UPI)—In American teen-age circles, they're known as goofballs. Young British thrill seekers call them purple hearts.

In either case, they're referring to a form of pep pills which are consumed for "kicks." The pills contain a stimulant, amphetamine, which stimulates the consumer to go without sleep for an abnormal number of hours.

The gulping of goofballs is not a new problem in the U.S., but British teen-agers apparently have only recently discovered them.

Medical authorities here report thousands of English youths are downing purple hearts, and both the authorities and parents have become alarmed.

The pills can be purchased illegally for sixpence each and, if taken in sufficient quantity, doctors say, they become an addiction.

The pills derive their nickname from their purple color and heart shape.

One teen-ager asked why he took purple hearts said: "They make me feel good, on top of the world. I need them."

Rather boastfully, the youth said he "must be the youngest drug addict in the country." He said he had been warned by doctors "I would be dead in five years if I didn't stop. But I can't stop."

In Britain addicts of morphine and other such drugs are treated as medical and not criminal problems. Under the National Health Service, addicts are given withdrawal cures or in some cases receive the minimum doses they need to lead relatively normal lives.

As a result few crimes are traceable to such drug addicts, who don't have to steal to obtain their "fixes."

But with the pep pills it is different. There have been a number of cases this year of break-ins at drug stores by youths looking for purple hearts, and other crimes committed to obtain money for the pills.

It is not known exactly where the bulk of the illicit supplies come from. Some are stolen and at present their import into Britain is uncontrolled.

Until now it has been no offence to possess the drugs unless the police could show they had been obtained illegally. But police expect to be helped greatly by a new drug bill before parliament that makes "unauthorized possession" of pills containing amphetamine an offence.

Thompson Says:

Liberal Party Split 'Only Weeks Away'

VANCOUVER (CP)—Robert Thompson, national leader of the Social Credit Party, said Friday a breakdown between federal and Quebec Liberals is only weeks away.

He said there can be no conciliation between the groups as long as the provinces hold fast to its demands at this week's federal-provincial conference in Quebec.

Mr. Thompson said Premier Jean Lesage of Quebec has sold down the river any national leadership aspirations he may have had.

Recent statements by Mr. Lesage led Mr. Thompson to question the premier's dedication to seeing Canada remain a nation, he said.

Mr. Thompson was interviewed as delegates gathered here for a two-day convention of federal and provincial party officials.

PENNSON BLOCKED?

He said he doubted the Canada pension plan would go ahead if both Quebec and Ontario did not participate.

He praised the proposed Bank of B.C. as a good thing, but doubted if any federal charter would be granted to it, or any of the other new banks, until next year.

Pearson Angered By Query

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson bristled with anger Friday at a suggestion from a Conservative backbencher that his government is contributing to the breakup of Confederation.

Edward Nasseben (PC, Rochester) had posed a question in connection with government suggestions that provinces be allowed to contract out of national programs.

"How long does the prime minister think it will take his government to complete the separation of Quebec from the rest of Canada?" he asked.

The prime minister snapped back: "... that is the kind of question which is not designed to strengthen national unity and should not be asked ..."

Union Rebels Close Mines

PITTSBURGH (AP)—More soft coal mines were closed Friday by rebel miners defying their leaders in an intra-union contract dispute.

At least eight more mines and a coal processing plant were shut down by dissatisfied miners trying to force a reopening of negotiations on a recently signed national coal contract.

Plea to NATO

Johnson Asks 'Partnership'

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson, saluting the Atlantic alliance Friday, called on its 15 member countries to avoid "egotistical and aggressive nationalism" and seek "closer partnership."

Johnson addressed the U.S. people by television and radio

Closer Links Advocated

OTTAWA (CP)—The external affairs department said Friday on the 15th anniversary of NATO that the alliance must remain strong and work for closer links between Europe and North America.

"NATO members must soon decide what type of alliance is best suited to the '70s and '80s" the department said.

Inquiry No Cure Says Charman

PENTICTON (CP)—A "people-to-people" approach to differences between French-speaking and English-speaking Canadians has been urged by Eric Charman, B.C. president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

He told the Penticton Junior Chamber:

"Those who think the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism is the cure for this situation are mistaken."

SAME RESULTS

The commission will achieve what all royal commissions have achieved since Confederation — a "convenient shelving."

He urged Jaycees to set up panel discussions and study groups to dig deeper into the basic issues of the French-English rift.

Recently 90,000 French-speaking Jaycees split away from the Canadian Junior Chamber to form a separate group under the name Federation des Jeunes Jaycees de Quebec.

He scored some English-speaking Jaycees for "an almost contemptuous attitude toward our colleagues from Quebec."

Tourist Surplus!

OTTAWA (CP)—A record flood of visitors from the United States last year gave Canada its first favorable tourist trade balance since 1950—$12,000,000.

Preliminary figures show visitors to Canada spent $602,000,000, and Canadian expenditures in other countries were $589,000,000.

U.S. Warned About Ship Rates

'Don't Muck About'

LONDON (Reuters)—An official of the North Atlantic Shippers Association said here Friday if the United States tried to "muck about" with contracts between exporters and ship owners, Britain could take retaliatory measures to make it "all square."

R. G. Walton, secretary of the association, said "we have reached a stage where our own government is going to be quite tough with the American government and tell it that it had better lay off contracts in this country."

The dispute arises from an order by the U.S. Federal Maritime Commission that shippers carrying cargoes into U.S. ports revise freight charges to America by Friday or face fines of up to $1,000 a day.

The order is the result of a 1961 act of the U.S. Congress, described by U.S. shipping experts as having been aimed against what the U.S. considers monopolistic practices in dual shipping rates.

Dual rate contracts are agreements between a shipping conference—an association of carriers operating on the same route—and an exporter under which a lower freight rate is given if the exporter undertakes to ship all his goods by the shipping line concerned.

U.S. Meningitis Scare Proves False Alarm

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Military and civilian doctors said Friday tests proved that a soldier, suspected of being infected with spinal meningitis, does not have the dread disease which touched off a scare extending halfway across the United States.

The scare resulted in quarantine of 37 other soldiers and six of their dependents and a warning to several hundred civilians who had travelled with the soldier aboard a Frisco train to Oklahoma City from St. Louis, Mo.

The suspected carrier, Pte. Kenneth R. Murray of Marietta, Ohio, was examined by Dr. Bruce Lemmon at Burge Hospital in Springfield, Mo.

Col. J. B. Miller, executive officer at the U.S. Army hospital at Fort Sill, Okla., said Lemmon reported that tests show Murray "does not have meningitis, nor is there any meningitis involved" in ailments which Murray had complained about.

The doctor said Murray had suffered for about five weeks from mononucleosis, sometimes known as "kissing disease."

Miller said Murray who has been in isolation, would be transferred to Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., for further tests and examination at the base hospital.

The spinal meningitis had caused three deaths since February at Fort Knox, Ky., from where Murray and the other soldiers departed en route to Fort Sill for reassignment.

Change No. 28

MONTREAL (CP)—Three major Montreal sugar refiners have announced a 25-cent decrease in the wholesale price of sugar to $13.20 a 100-pound bag, the 28th change and 19th decrease this year.

These contracts have been customary for many years in shipping all over the world.

Youths Admit Holdup

Two out of three youths charged with robbery with violence in the knife-point kidnap of a man on Clover Point Thursday night pleaded guilty in city magistrate's court yesterday.

Guilt pleas were entered by George Mazrall, 18, and Clifford LeBlanc, 19. Ronald Moore, 20, reserved his plea until Monday. All live at 1315 Stanley.

A man told police he picked up a hitchhiker on Government Street, then drove to Clover Point on Dallas Road, court was told. He said he stopped his car, then two youths in another car drove up.

One stuck a knife against his ribs and said "come across." The man then gave the youths all his money—$7.77—and all three fled in the same car.

Magistrate William Ouler ordered pre-sentence reports on Mazrall and LeBlanc and remanded Moore to Monday for plea.

William Parker, 1228 Fort was fined $300 in city court and had his driver's licence suspended when he pleaded guilty to impaired driving.

Court was told Parker was seen to drive three times onto the wrong side of the road while driving west on Gorge Road between Rock Bay and Jutland March 26.

Two youths were fined $20 each in court for being minors in possession of alcohol.

Eric M. Boak, 2580 Lane, downed, pleaded guilty to the charge in city court, and Ernest B. Smart pleaded guilty in Oak Bay court.

Card Rules Changed

Professor's Book Dents Casinos

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — A college mathematics professor who published a book including a system for winning at blackjack has forced the major Las Vegas casinos to change the rules of the card game slightly to give the house better odds.

Gabriel Vogliotti, executive secretary of the Resort Hotel Association, said Thursday the new changes came about largely because of the publication of a book on winning at blackjack written by a New Mexico college professor, Edward O. Thorp.

ODDS FOR PLAYERS — Thorp outlined in Beat the Dealer the pattern for calculating the odds on the game so players could get a 52-48 percentage in their favor.

PORTLAND (AP) — The first truckloads of lumber—a gift from Oregon lumbermen to Alaska—have arrived at a Portland shipping terminal. Within the next week lumbermen hope to stack 3,000,000 to 5,000,000 board feet of lumber aboard a ship for the earthquake-devastated state. The U.S. government will provide the ship.

Vogliotti said the normal percentage is about 47.5 to 52.5 in favor of the house.

Vogliotti said the decision to alter the game was made after pit bosses at the major casinos reported the Thorp method was beginning to make a dent in the house's money.

Third Power Plant Likely For Big Grand Coulee Dam

Harold T. Nelson of Boise, Idaho, told the Northwest Public Power Association a feasibility study on adding a third power plant at Grand Coulee Dam is nearly complete. The proposal, made practical by the addition of 20,000,000 acre feet of upstream storage on the Columbia River through the U.S.-Canada treaty, could boost the giant dam's capacity from just under 2,000,000 to 5,500,000 kilowatts.

Year 2,000—a New World

SPOKANE (AP)—The Pacific Northwest will have two huge cities extending from Everett to Eugene, a complex of nuclear plants and its own satellite helping regulate power transmission in the area — all by the year 2000.

Those were the predictions yesterday of Charles F. Luce, Bonneville Power administrator, in a speech prepared for delivery at the annual convention of the Northwest Public Power Association.

DEVELOP FASTER

Luce said his staff, including economists, hydrologists and engineers, made the study, and sometimes surprised themselves with the discovery that things were developing faster than they had assumed.

"They talk confidently about a single conductor that would have sufficient capacity to carry more power than is now produced by the 21 federal dams generating power in the northwest," he said.

"They describe a machine that will make power with hot gases. They hint at a large complex of nuclear plants in eastern Washington. To them the year 1980 is almost a reality and the year 2000 is very different world indeed."

Luce said they foresee 13,500,

000 persons in the northwest, compared to 6,000,000 now.

Other predictions included: A city of 4,000,000 in the Puget Sound area, and another of 2,000,000 extending from Eugene to Portland on the lower Columbia.

The average home will use about 50,000 kilowatt-hours of electricity a year, a five-fold increase.

Electricity will provide 70 per cent of the region's power.

NEW TERM

A new term—gigawatt — is needed to describe the increased power loads. A gigawatt represents a million kilowatts.

The region will need 95 gigawatts—40 from hydro plants, 12 from thermoelectric plants, 17 from other thermal plants and the remaining 25 from methods now being developed — mostly in converting chemical energy and heat directly to electricity.

There's No Panacea

WINNIPEG (CP)—The UN does not favor the establishment of a standing UN army to carry out peace-keeping operations, Ralph Bunche, UN Under-Secretary for Special Political Affairs, said Friday.

Instead, he said, "we do favor standby forces, with individual countries designating individual units which would be available when the UN calls."

UN ASSOCIATION

Dr. Bunche was addressing 3,000 people at a public meeting sponsored by the Winnipeg branch of the UN Association in Canada.

The meeting followed a special convocation of the University of Manitoba at which Dr. Bunche was awarded the honorary degree of doctor of laws.

Dr. Bunche warned against the "excessive tendency to see UN forces as a panacea."

"They had, he said, limitations."

DIFFERENT KIND

One limitation was cost. Another was that each "conflict situation" called for a different kind of UN force.

The Cyprus government, he said, had stipulated the UN force sent to help establish peace between the island's Greek and Turkish communities should be made up only of troops from Commonwealth or non-aligned nations.

GREAT MANY

"If there had been a standing army sitting in the backyard of the United Nations, we would have found there were a great many troops we couldn't use," he said.

Dr. Bunche said Canada had inaugurated the alternative idea of designating standby forces to be put at the disposal of the UN. It was because of this, he said, Canada was able to provide its contingent so quickly.

FOUR AREAS

Dr. Bunche traced the operations of UN forces in the Gambia Strip, Congo, Kashmir and Cyprus.

The Congo operation, he said, is now nearing an end. The last 5,000 UN troops will be withdrawn by the end of June.

The Congo situation now is "better than it was." The UN, at a cost of more than $400, 000,000, had achieved the introduction of "some semblance of law and order," he said, obtained the withdrawal of Belgian troops and had provided training for the Congolese.

The UN had saved the territorial integrity of The Congo by ending the accusation of the province of Katanga.

Katanga President Tshombe was in voluntary exile in Spain but Dr. Bunche said he "may try to emerge."

"I wouldn't be surprised if he does when UN troops move out at the end of June."

MOST DELICATE

In Cyprus, Dr. Bunche said, the situation was "probably politically the most delicate and difficult which has confronted the UN in its 18 years of life."

War over Cyprus, he said, "seemed much too close for comfort," before the UN acted. "We have often heard the Security Council is losing its effectiveness and deteriorating," he said. "In the last couple of years that trend has been reversed."

REDS IN FAVOR

The resolution which sent the peace-keeping force to Cyprus was adopted unanimously by the council, with Russia and Czechoslovakia voting in favor.

For the future, Dr. Bunche said, the "most ominous cause for alarm" was the "widening gap that exists between the developed and underdeveloped nations."

MORE DECISIVE

Dr. Bunche said that since the UN has reached its present size of 113 nations, the General Assembly "has recorded more achievements on more difficult issues with more decisive votes than ever before."

In the U.S., Dr. Bunche said, the struggle for racial equality was reaching "its climactic stage." There was no doubt Negroes would attain equality. "No other solution is possible... failure to attain equality for Negroes could only have disastrous results."

Trustees, Union Agree

SIU Dispute Solved

MONTREAL (CP)—The board of maritime trustees and the Seafarers' International Union of North America announced agreement Friday night on a formula to ensure labor peace on the Great Lakes. It calls for a regular member of the SIU of Canada to take over as president of the union.

Under the SIU constitution, executive vice-president Leonard McLaughlin would take over as president "in the near future" from Charles Turner, appointed to succeed Hal C. Banks as union president when the trustees fired Mr. Banks March 18.

In a joint statement made at a press conference in the trustees' Montreal office, Paul Hall, president of the SIU of North America, and Charles Millard, a member of the board of trustees, said immediate steps will be taken to restore the SIU of Canada to constitutional control of its members.

Mr. Millard said at the question period after statements were read out that Mr. Turner would step down as president "in the near future" but would remain associated with the union and trustees. New elections are scheduled to be held in November.

The joint statement also said "all possible steps will be taken to achieve integration of maritime unions in Canada where it is in the interests of union stability."

Mr. Millard, when asked if this meant one union for all Great Lakes sailors, said moves toward this goal were "not too far away."

It was understood that the Canadian Maritime Union (CMU), representing sailors of the Upper Lakes Shipping Limited Company of Toronto, would be integrated with the SIU. This would be extended to members of the National Association of Marine Engineers (N.A.M.E.), who represent licensed personnel on Upper Lakes Ships.

Four Years For Rapist

NANAIMO — A 23-year-old circus worker from Edmonton was sentenced in Assize Court Friday to four years in the British Columbia penitentiary.

Robert Glen Ward was convicted of the rape of a 21-year-old Nanaimo mother of three Sept. 21, 1963.

Mr. Justice J. G. A. Hutchison of Vancouver told Ward he showed "a complete disregard for the laws of the land" as he reviewed Ward's six previous convictions which ranged from assault to theft.

Monday an Alert Bay man will stand trial for the capital murder of Rosalind Louise Weddams, 10, at Alert Bay Nov. 7, 1963.

This case is expected to last a week because of more than 40 exhibits to be introduced and 18 crown witnesses to give evidence.

BRAIN DAMAGE

Dr. Florence Wilson, a Victoria pathologist, said Nesbitt died of asphyxiation when he became unconscious because of brain damage and was unable to cough his own stomach contents out of his lungs.

Joseph McKenna, defence counsel, asked Mr. Justice Hutchison to give Cline a suspended sentence and reviewed the court appearances of the youth since Nesbitt's death last summer.

Mr. McKenna asked: "Does he need greater discipline than he has suffered through his conviction and through the ordeal of all these court appearances?"

MP's Plea

'Be Ready For Disaster'

OTTAWA (CP)—T. C. Douglas, leader of the New Democrats, urged the government Friday to set up machinery for prompt action when civil disasters strike.

Mr. Douglas told the Commons—the federal government's role in meeting a disaster is limited until a plan is worked out with the provinces, municipalities, charitable organizations and others. This delay could be avoided if some machinery was devised for automatic action in providing assistance in disaster areas.

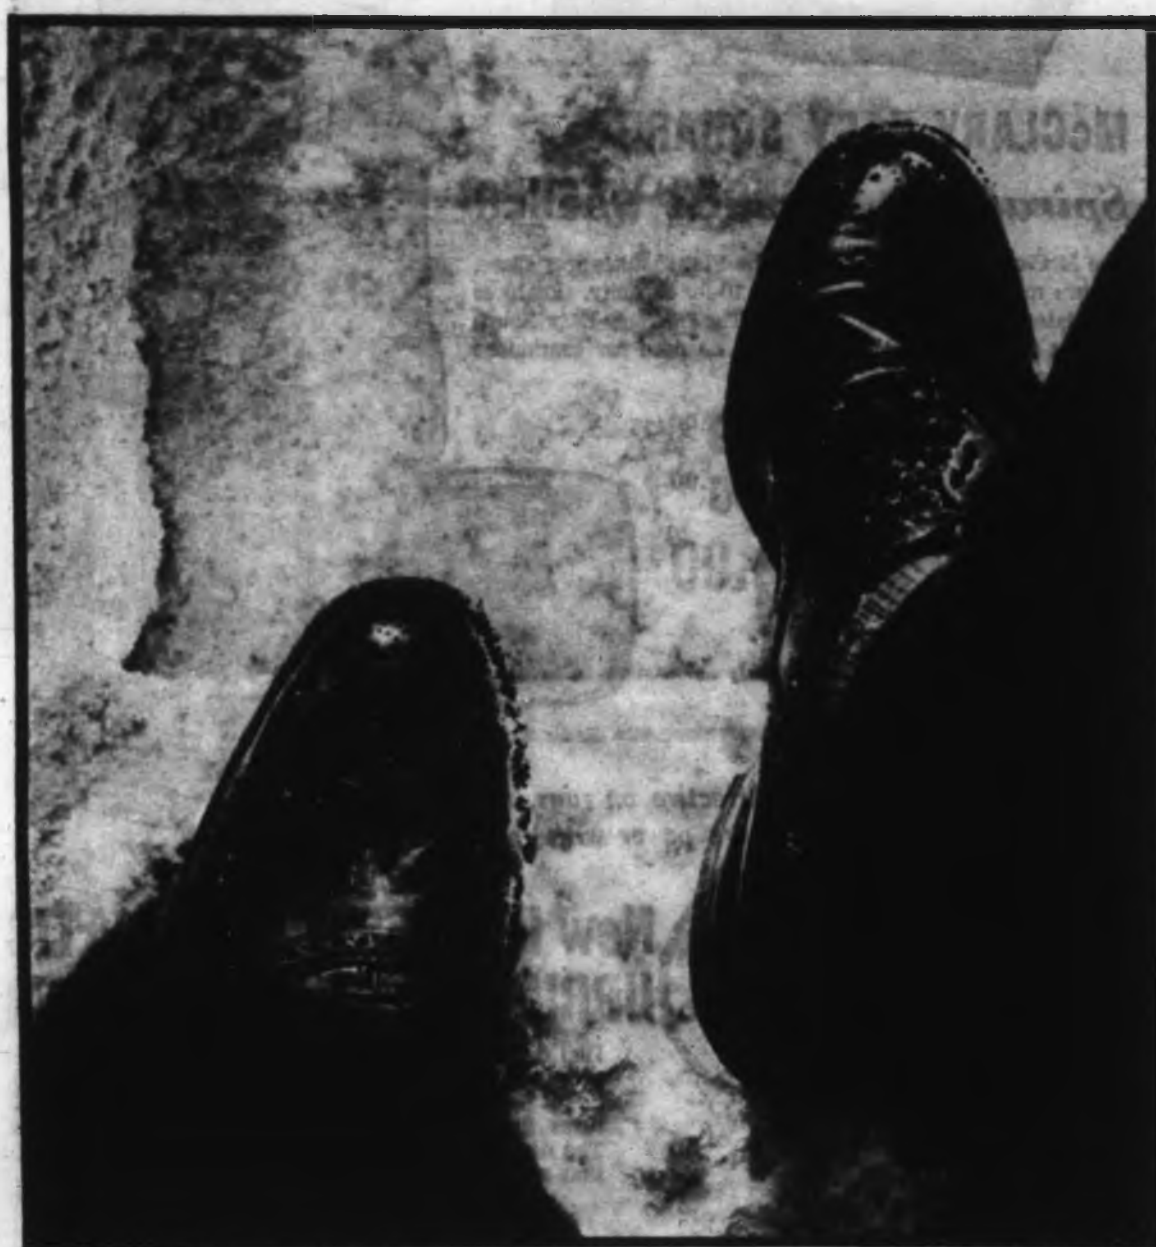

U.S. AID FAST

Speaking during Commons study of the spending estimates of the finance department, Mr. Douglas noted Canada was able to offer help to the U.S. in dealing with the Alaska earthquake, but still is unable to step directly into the tidal wave emergency that resulted in British Columbia.

Resources Minister Laing, liaison man in the cabinet for the provincial flood, said the B.C. information on which the federal government can base a contribution will be ready in a week. If the province did not ask for a contribution, Mr. Laing would recommend that a substantial federal offering be made.

Navy Aids Flood Victims

Two ships of the RCN Pacific Command have contributed $225 to the Albers Flood Relief Fund. HMCS Siroca contributed $300 and HMCS Naden donated $125 with contributions of $25 each coming from the wardroom, chief's mess, PO's mess, Fleet Club and the Ship's Fund.

Special $50,000,000 Near for Alaska

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate appropriations committee Friday approved a special $50,000,000 appropriation for restoration of public facilities damaged in last week's Alaska earthquake disaster.

Approval of the disaster relief item by the House of Representatives is expected Monday.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The central Alaska land mass appears to have been thrust upward from six to 10 feet by last Friday's earthquake, the U.S. interior department was informed Thursday.

The report did not specify the scope of the central land mass to which it referred, but said that the result was probably extensive damage to most dams and waterfalls in Alaska. The report was made by Harry Rietze, regional director of the Bureau of Commercial Fisheries at Juneau.

MAJOR LAND SHIFT
His report coincided with others from Alaska indicating a major permanent land shift. Based on tide measurements, land at Valdez apparently was 14 feet higher than before, while Kodiak Island appears to have sunk eight feet.

Rietze reported that some beach houses near Cordova were high and dry and littered with dead clams. Damage was described as "catastrophic" to those beaches.

King and dangerous crab and shrimp fleets and plants appear badly damaged and will be forced to operate on reduced levels, he reported.

Total repair and replacement for the fishing industry's docks, boats, gear and plants is estimated by Rietze to cost $24,000,000.

However, he stated that the halibut fleet appeared undamaged and salmon fleets and plants probably will be able to operate normally.

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — It will probably cost $35,000 to repair cables between Kalen Island and Digby Island which were damaged Saturday in the tidal wave following the Alaska earthquake.

The city installed the cable under terms by which the $10,000 Digby airport was built by the federal government, but the city feels maintenance should be carried out by Ottawa. City administrator Scott McLaren said negotiations are under way with Ottawa.

Coroners Cleared In Ontario Deaths

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario supervising coroner's office cleared two coroners concerned with deaths in which bullet wounds were not discovered until the bodies had been removed to morgues.

An investigation was ordered Wednesday into the actions of coroners Dr. H. H. Lloyd of Smiths Falls and Dr. H. V. Lang of Kitchener after supervising coroner Dr. H. B. O'Connell said coroners have instructions to preserve the scene of a violent death as much as possible. This included not moving the body.

The deaths under investigation were those of Walter Giff, 57, found dead in his Smiths Falls store Sunday, and Rev. Joseph Armstrong, 45, discovered slumped in his car on the outskirts of Kitchener, March 18. "We are convinced both coroners acted quite correctly under the circumstances," said Jack Hills, assistant to Dr. O'Connell.

"In neither of these cases did the police ask the coroners not to move the body."

Mr. Hills said there was no sign of bleeding or violence when Mr. Giff's body was discovered.

In Mr. Armstrong's death there were people milling around the scene and finding the wounds immediately would have necessitated removing the dead man's clothing in front of them.

Paid-to-Love Evidence Incredible, Says Court

OTTAWA (CP) — A magistrate described as incredible Thursday a witness's statement that he was paid to have sexual intercourse as part of his duties for an Ontario government board.

Graham Rutter, 38, testified he was employed by the board of directors of massuers operating under the Ontario Drugless Practitioners Act. He said he had intercourse on three occasions with a girl at a clinic in order to obtain court evidence.

HARD TO BELIEVE
"I find it hard to believe that a board of the Ontario government would pay a man to have sexual intercourse," Magistrate C. Edward Carter said.

Rutter is a Crown witness at the trial of Andre Charette, 24, charged with keeping a common bawdy house called the European Health Clinic.

'BY ANY MEANS'

He said he had been instructed by the board to "get the actual evidence by any means suitable," which he interpreted to mean intercourse. He said he informed the board of his methods several times.

"You certainly don't have to have sexual intercourse to get evidence on a bawdy house," said the magistrate.

Rutter said he was paid $250 a month and expenses. He said expenses at the health clinic amounted to $16 on each of his visits—$6 for massage and $10 for intercourse.

Oxfam Group Plans Float For Parade

Members of Victoria branch of the newly-formed Oxfam committee are currently busy designing a float to display in the May 24 parade.

Oxfam—the Oxford Committee for Famine Relief—is a worldwide organization which helps distressed areas and sends food and clothing to people in need. Soon the committee will be asking Victoria shopkeepers, stores and other businesses to help by placing collection boxes in their premises. On the box is a picture of a starving, emaciated little boy holding out an empty food bowl.

Anyone interested in helping by taking charge of a collection box can call Mrs. Claire Smith, EV5-6005. Anyone interested in joining Oxfam's working committee can call Norman Stephens at EV 4-6504.

Second-Time Rhymer Seeks Dimes.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Fund-raiser Wendy Roydhouse, 6, who harvested nickels and dimes with nursery rhymes, is starting on a new campaign to help Alaska's earthquake victims.

"I'm trying to find my snow pants so I can send them up there, too," Wendy says.

Alaska's Governor William Egan received a letter, wrapped carefully around a Canadian dollar bill, which said only:

"To the dear children. This money is for you."
Wendy was the sender.

When a reporter dropped around to see her, she told this story:

"Daphne Pappas and I recited nursery rhymes along the block, and the people gave us money."

"We had to make them up first, and I don't remember them any more. But we made a dollar."

"Some of the rhymes were hard to remember," said Wendy. "I had to keep them in my brain."

Blind Garage Man Urges Controls

VANCOUVER (CP) — Gasoline prices at the wholesale level should be government-controlled, and not subject to the control of a handful of companies, a blind service station operator has told the royal commission on gasoline prices.

William Abitt, who operates a discount gasoline outlet in Burnaby, said that, if legislation went into effect controlling the wholesale price, retail prices would settle at an economic level for each B.C. area.

He said the commission system by which oil companies sell gasoline to service station operators discriminates against independent retailers.

If he bought gasoline from the major oil companies, he would have to pay three cents a gallon more for gasoline than his competitors, because he refused to buy on consignment.

Twelve teams got the jump on the field last night and 68 others see their first action today at Mayfair Lanes in The Daily Colonist's first annual Vancouver Island Tenpin Bonspiel.

Advancing to the second round of the Colonist "A" event last night were Bapco Paint, Edits, Dynamiters, D.R.s, Webers, and Castle Service. To get there they beat Alley Cats, Carey Home Service, Reid's Low Cost, J and J Transfer, Esso Bees, and Oak Bay Pharo.

Oil Kings Reign Over Wheat Kings

WINNIPEG (CP)—The defending Memorial Cup champion Edmonton Oil Kings bounced Brandon Wheat Kings, 5-3, here Friday night in the first game of the Western Canada junior hockey semi-final.

A crowd of 7,500 watched Oil Kings score three unanswered goals in the second period to floor the Wheat Kings, champions of the Manitoba Junior Hockey League.

The best-of-seven series resumes Monday night at Brandon. Other games are scheduled for Edmonton April 7 and 9 and, if necessary, April 11.

Should further games be necessary they would be played at Brandon.

The winner of this series meets either Eatevan Bruins or Regina Pats for the Abbott Cup, symbol of Western Canada Junior hockey supremacy.

Coaches Exchange Stalling Charges

DETROIT—The Stanley Cup semi-final series between the Chicago Black Hawks and the Detroit Red Wings has been a rough, tough affair with players hitting as if they got extra money for each body check.

And now, the two coaches have joined in the no-holds-barred event. But they are doing their fighting with words, rather than board checks.

LONG DELAY
Chicago coach Billy Reay was upset over what he called "Detroit's stalling tactics." He said the 22-minute delay that occurred Thursday night while Detroit substituted Roger Crozier for injured goalie Terry Sawchuk was "deliberate."

"Detroit knew before the game started that Sawchuk wasn't 100 per cent," Reay complained. "They should have had a goalie dressed and ready to go on the ice immediately."

Also Sawchuk must have known during the intermission after the first period that he was hurt again. Why didn't they dress Crozier then?"

It was the second time during the series that such a delay occurred. There was a 16-minute wait in the second game Sunday night in Chicago while Detroit dressed Bob Champoux after Sawchuk had suffered a pinched nerve in his left shoulder.

DENIES CLAIM
Detroit general manager-coach Sid Abel denied Reay's claim. "No, we certainly weren't trying to delay the game," Abel said. "We wanted to go with our best goalie and give Terry every chance possible to stay in the game, but the pain just got too great."

"I'm sure Chicago would do the same thing if Glenn Hall were injured. I'm sure they wouldn't shove their spare goalie (Dennis DeJordy) into a playoff game just to save time."

"I'd like to see how much time they would take to dress another goalie if Glenn Hall was injured."

Leafs' Road Games Aired Next Season
TORONTO (CP)—If radio stations are willing, Maple Leaf plans to broadcast all of its hockey team's out-of-town games next season on a coast-to-coast network.

President Stafford Smythe announced plans Friday to provide radio coverage of the 35 National Hockey League away games over approximately 50 stations, but said only CFBF Toronto has agreed so far.

Dan A. Poyntz, vice-president of Walsli Advertising, which is arranging the venture for the Gardens, said in an interview no other stations have been approached because it was decided to keep the plan secret until details could be worked out and a sponsor found.

Foster Hewitt, known for many years as the voice of Maple Leaf hockey, has been broadcasting Leaf out-of-town games on his Toronto radio station CKFH.

Poyntz and Smythe described CFBF as the "anchor station" in the proposed network and said broadcasting personnel has not been decided, but Poyntz added: "I can promise you we'll have a new sound and a new approach."

It had not been decided whether games would be described from the opening face-off or from the start of the second period.

Smythe said the "Newfoundland-to-Pacific network" was the result of entreaties from "a tremendous number" of hockey fans across the country.

Bombers Raiding B.C. Lions' Den?

VANCOUVER (UPI)—

British Columbia Lions have filed an official protest with Commissioner Sydney Halter regarding an alleged violation by the Winnipeg Blue Bombers of regulations governing the Canadian equalization draft of the Western Football Conference. It was learned Friday.

According to the commissioner's ruling, no club is to contact any of the players on the club's unprotected list and no club is permitted to release any information as to players placed on the list by other teams.

Said Lion general manager Herb Capozzi: "We have proof that not only did Winnipeg have some one contact one of our players but they also advised this player as to the names of other players on the list. We feel this is a complete violation of the regulations." Head Coach Dave Skrien stated that the action of the Winnipeg club could be most damaging to his team's morale.

Capozzi stated that not only is the club requesting that immediate action be taken against the Bombers but he has also advised the commissioner the club will oppose any selection by Winnipeg of a B.C. player.

Revenge Game Set For Forum Tonight

By DICK BACON

MONTREAL (UPI)—Referee Frank Ivarni figures to spend another very busy evening tonight — if the brawling, revenge-seeking combatants in the Montreal-Toronto "hockey" playoffs make good on their threats.

The battered, beaten and crippled Montreal Canadiens limped out of Maple Leaf Gardens Thursday night vowing to "get you in Montreal."

Tonight's game between Toronto and Montreal will be telecast on Channels 5 and 6 and broadcast on CBU radio (680), starting at 8:30 p.m., according to the CBC.

They had just lost a hockey game, 5-3, to square the semi-final Stanley Cup series at 2-2, and perhaps more important, had lost three of four fights plus team leader Jean Beliveau.

MOST PENALIZED

While the playoffs are billed as hockey at its best, the current series may go down in history as producing some of the worst. Already it has established itself as the most penalized with the referees handing out a record 240 minutes for various violations.

Tempers have been wearing thin ever since the two clubs started the series March 26 in Montreal, and some of the players seem more intent on maiming one another than in playing hockey. Game No. 4 was the worst to date. It started with a brawl and ended in similar fashion. It took a tortuous two hours and a half to complete.

CLARENCE PLEASED

However, at least one non-paying spectator was pleased with production — National Hockey League president Clarence Campbell.

"I thought it was an excellent game," he said. Campbell praised the standard of officiating as "very high" and said the fact the referees have called a lot of penalties (89) "indicates to me that they are very sharp."

Campbell views the series so far as a "chippy" one with a lot of small fouls, but added that the "officials have always had the complete control of the situation."

"Neither series has been ready dirty," he went on. "Sticks have been carried low most of the time. There have been a few chops but usually they have been carried low."

LITTLE LUCK

Referee John Ashley and his two linesmen had little luck controlling the opening and closing brawls at Maple Leaf Gardens Thursday. But Campbell said "You can't lecture and reason with men when they are in this frame of mind."

"You must let them go," he added. "They are worked up and have to get it out of their systems. You just can't lecture at this time."

Coach Grabs Ref Peepees Banned

GODERICH, Ont. (CP)—Don Mills teams have been barred from participating in future Young Canada Week peepee hockey tournaments here following an incident Thursday night when the Don Mills coach and manager grappled with referee — in chief Stan Stokes.

Stokes, a vice-president of the Ontario Minor Hockey Association, was grabbed and his necktie torn in a skirmish after a heated contest between the Don Mills team and Toronto

Scarborough, which eventually won the game 4-1.

This was the first Don Mills team to take part in the Goderich tournament, now in its 15th season.

The Young Canada Week tournament committee Friday said no more Don Mills entries will be accepted in the future.

The game between the Toronto teams was marked by 14 minor penalties with five Don Mills players in the penalty box in the final seconds of the game.

Snead Holds Onto Lead In Greensboro Tourney

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP)—

Sam Snead survived a shaky start Friday to come up with four birdies for a par 71 second round and hold the halfway lead in the $35,000 Greater Greensboro Open golf tournament by three strokes with a 135 total.

Australian Bill Dunk, who started the round in a second-place tie, three shots off the lead, matched Snead's 71 to hold second place in a tie with

United States Open champion Julius Boros, who shot 70 for a 138 total.

Jack Nicklaus, getting ready to defend his Masters championship next week, fired an eagle that helped him to a 69 round, good for fourth place at 139, four shots off the pace.

Arnold Palmer dropped 10 shots back of Snead with a 75 that gave him a 145 total.

SAD COMMENT

Palmer three-putted five times and commented sadly, "I never enjoyed playing golf less."

Seventy-one professionals who shot 147 or under and 10 amateurs qualified for today's third round. Ten more pros will be cut for the final round Sunday.

MISS CUTOFF

Failing to make the cut were Lionel Hebert, Johnny Pott, Rex Baxter, Jacky Cupit, Toronto's Al Balding, Stan Leonard of

Vancouver, Art Wall and Don

January.

Balding had a 75-75-150 and Stan Leonard 76-75-151.

Among other Canadians, Al Johnston had 69-71-140 for fifth place. He was tied with Bob Shave, Larry Mowry, Al Geiberger, Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg had a 70-77-147.

Both Johnston and Homenuik qualified for the last two rounds.

A steady 10-mile-an-hour wind that reached gusts of 30 m.p.h. at times swept the 35-38-71 Sedgfield Country Club course, blowing away an early morning threat of additional rain after an overnight rainfall.

Quigleys outscored Saints 21-9 in the third quarter, 10 of the points from Middlemiss, forcing a fourth-quarter showdown battle.

Hamilton appeared to be comfortable with a 57-47 lead with 7½ minutes remaining in the game, but began to get rattled when CYO went into a full-court press to stay in the game.

The pressing Saints scored nine points in the next two minutes and finally regained the lead when centre Neil Williams tipped the ball in to make it 58-57.

Errors Bared

Shot-Down Fliers May Be Grounded

WASHINGTON (AP) — The pilot and navigator of the RB-66 reconnaissance bomber which strayed into East Germany and was shot down last month will go before a U.S. Air Force board which will determine whether they are qualified to continue flying.

Huge Damage

Tornado Kills Texans

WICHITA FALLS, Tex. (AP) — A tornado ripped through the northwestern suburbs of Wichita Falls and nearby Sheppard air force base Friday, killing at least six people, injuring 53 others and causing enormous damage. Entire sections of homes and businesses were demolished by the twister. Cars were tossed about like toys. Power and phone lines were knocked down.

FIVE WOMEN

Wichita General Hospital said five of the dead were women and one was a man. Governor John Connally ordered 100 national guardsmen to help Wichita Falls police patrol the devastated area. Although there was no official estimate of the property damage, unofficial surveys put the loss at nearly $2,000,000.

City Doctor In Fiji Asks Help

A Victoria doctor in Fiji has appealed for help for victims of that country's disastrous floods.

U.S. Trucker Wins Fight

VANCOUVER (CP) — City council is being advised by the board of administration to pay $1,500 damages to Hubert Henry Harrison, an American truck driver arrested illegally in Vancouver last Nov. 22 and held in jail for four days. Harrison was arrested at the request of Seattle police. City prosecutor Stewart McMoran said in B.C. Supreme Court that the arrest and detention were illegal.

New University Accepts Tender

VANCOUVER (CP) — The board of governors has accepted a low bid of $3,399,455 for construction of the academic quadrangle at the new Simon Fraser University atop Burnaby Mountain. The bid was made jointly by Northern Construction Co. and J. W. Stewart Ltd. of Vancouver and Bird Construction Co. of Winnipeg.

The air force announced this Friday in saying a fact-finding inquiry panel had found a "gross navigational error resulting from erroneous indications" from a navigational compass caused the crew of the RB-66 to believe they were on the right course "when actually they were not."

"However, the board reported additional factors in the plane being off course appeared to be a lack of complete crew co-ordination and failure to cross-check the plane's position by other navigational means available," the announcement said.

Capt. David Holland, 35, of Holland, Minn., was the pilot of the RB-66 and Capt. Melvin Krusler, 30, of Philadelphia, was the navigator.

STILL IN HOSPITAL — The third member of the plane's crew, Lieut. Harold Welch, 24, of Detroit, is still in hospital with leg, arm and neck fractures and is suffering from amnesia, the air force said.

The RB-66 was shot down by a Russian fighter March 10. The crew members parachuted from it.

Earlier this week, the air force replaced the commander of the reconnaissance wing in which the errant RB-66 served.

U.S. Advice To Needy 'Slippery'

GENEVA (Reuters) — Soviet Foreign Trade Minister Nikolai Patolichev Friday described United States advice to needy countries to help themselves as "a rather slippery formula."

He told reporters outside the United Nations world trade and development conference here that Russia was countering the U.S. formula with one of its own.

OWN PROPERTY — It consisted of low-interest credits to the developing countries to finance projects which would become their own property, the Russian reported. Patolichev was referring to U.S. State Undersecretary George Ball's address March 25 suggesting that developing countries could help bridge the gap between themselves and industrialized ones by doing more to help themselves.

"RATHER HARD" — Patolichev said Ball's statement created a "rather hard impression" which had not been lost on delegates from underdeveloped countries.

Meanwhile, at the conference proper, Bulgaria, Poland, Czechoslovakia and Hungary expressed the desire for increased trade with capitalist countries.

B.C. Students 'Magnificent'

Sound of Music Fills Arena

By KEN JOHNSON

The sound of music filled the Memorial Arena last night; music from the best school talent, instrumentally and vocally, throughout the whole province. A crowd of 1,200 or more was there to hear the All-Provinces Concert by some 300 youngsters in the last evening of the B.C. Music Educators' Association two-day Youth In Harmony First Provincial Conference.

In a two-hour program, the massed musical talent presented a varied and exciting repertoire, with items ranging from Bach to Richard Rodgers, from Somers to Wagner.

It was magnificent—from the ominous openings of Freischütz's Toccata, with the rich, hollow French horn and intricate string work of the All-Provinces Symphony Orchestra, to the final majestic strains of Vaughan Williams' Testament of Nations. The orchestra, under the baton of Vilem Schol, began the concert with the toccata, followed by the Bach's passively harmonic Komar Sussner Todd, with the trombones and cellos providing the ethereal harmonies of the piece.

Somers' brief, but strikingly original Suite for Strings on Canadian Folk Songs followed, the orchestra ending their section with Holst's Suite in E Flat, a vibrant and powerful item, with soft, pastoral interludes.

Conductor Wayne Herz took up the baton to lead the All-Provinces Choir into the soothing and melodic A Thought Like Music, by Brahms. Concluding the first part, the choir captured the reverence and sonic beauty of Lotti's Credo.

fixus, and built patterns of descending waves of sound with Cry Out and Shout, by Nydstedt.

The All-Provinces Band, conducted by A. Bert Christenson, began the second half with Prelude and Fugue in D Minor by Bach. Resonant and refreshing was Reed's Festival Prelude, with the precise brasses and stirring bass work of Wagner's Trauersinfonie following.

The pictorial, echoing imagery and resounding flow of Gayford's Canadian Landscape, a contrasting selection from Wilson's The Music Man, and Holst's boisterous Moorish March ended the band section of the program.

Leading up to the massed finale, the choir presented Robertson's A Lovely Heart with an undulating wall of voices in only three days of rehearsal for the massed concert. The religious beauty of Dietrich's Benedictus, and most fitting, a superb interpretation of Rodgers' Sound of Music.

A GENERAL MOTORS VALUE

'64 Chevrolet Impala Sport Sedan and (background) Impala Sport Coupe

'64 Jet-smooth Luxury Chevrolet

A hill is just something to admire the view from when you're driving a '64 Chevrolet. With engines up to a 425-hp V8*, getting from one side to the other wouldn't be much easier if somebody had put a tunnel there.

And if Chevrolet can go over a whole mountain so you hardly feel it, you can imagine how it goes over plain old bumps. Jet-smooth, of course. We put a big coil spring at all four wheels (not to mention 700 or so sound and shock absorbers throughout the body and chassis) to soak up the bumps just as fast as they come.

As you'd expect, Chevrolet matches performance with outstanding luxury, inside that big beautiful Body by Fisher. All kinds of stretch-out room and wide thick-cushioned seats that let you get in a full day's driving without fatigue. Yards of deep-twist carpeting and elegant fabric and vinyl upholstery that make you feel good just being there.

With all its looks and luxury, you can see how anyone might get the idea that this great highway performer is a high-priced car. Unless, of course, they happened to look first at its reasonable Chevrolet price.

And your Chevrolet dealer will be happy to show you that, wherever you drive, the price is probably what you'll feel least of all.

'Realism Through Poetry' at Festival

By HARVEY SHEPHERD
Two quite different one-act plays, "both really plays of realism rendered through poetry," were presented last night on the first night of the two-night South Vancouver Island Zone Drama Festival.

The festival adjudicator, CBC drama critic E. B. Metcalfe, gave the realism through poetry description in discussing both last night's plays—the University of Victoria Players' presentation of Harold Pinter's A Slight Ache and the Victoria Theatre Guild's of Edna St. Vincent Millay's Aria De Capo.

The Pinter play, a grimly absurd one set in an English gentleman's house, was described by Mr. Metcalfe as "exposing three possibilities of the human predicament."

He said the director of the production, Anthony Jenkins, and its three actors—Jane Turner, Michael Stephen and Horace Mayes—showed they understood well what Pinter is doing in the play.

He said Miss Turner was too theatrical in the earlier part of the play, but as it progressed she "came to it" and "she clinched it, finally."

He said he was impressed by Mr. Stephen's stage presence and "natural humor" and said that, in fact, he felt that "the play was in danger of becoming too funny."

The Millay play is set on a harlequin stage and uses traditional and mythological figures. Mr. Metcalfe said it is nonsense, the fact that it is cruel and the fact that these come together in an incongruous way.

He said he was disappointed that Dorothea House's direction of the play failed to open up new possibilities in the play.

which is something of a stage standard. But the production had been "pretty good."

Robert Lutes and Barbara Copeland, who play rather rapid and insubstantial characters, might paradoxically have been more "substantially insubstantial," he said.

Gem Hewlett and Peter Campbell were "quite nice" at times and "rather lost" at others, he said. Nora Kelle did not have quite the required "stentorian" voice, he said.

Tonight's productions will be the Peninsula Players' production of Joy Anderson's Tea for Mr. Beltranger, and the Victoria Theatre Guild's of N. F. Simpson's The Hole.

One of the four plays will be selected for the B.C. regional finals May 27 to 30 in Nanaimo.

Goodwill Dwarfs the Cost

By HARRY YOUNG Colonist Business Editor

Members of the Toronto Stock Exchange lost more than $163,000 in cash, but recouped a lot more in goodwill when they decided compensation should be paid in full to all clients who lost money through the failure of L. J. West and Co. Ltd., member firm of the TSE.

The liquidators of the bankrupt firm paid out 47 per cent of all claims, and this week the Toronto Stock Exchange paid out 181 cheques in settlement of the remaining 53 per cent of the West claims.

The firm of L. J. West failed to meet its obligations to other brokers Nov. 18, 1963, and was immediately suspended.

II. D. Graham, president of Toronto Stock Exchange, said, "The distribution has been made by the members of the exchange, from their mutual funds held by the exchange. It should be emphasized this exceptional step has been taken due to the special circumstances of this particular case, and should not be construed as establishing a precedent applicable to other circumstances."

Despite this, the fact the TSE members did face up to their moral responsibilities was an encouraging sign this exchange of least expects the highest standard of conduct among its members.

Amoco Co. and Kennecott Copper Corp., two of the largest copper companies in the U.S., have been warned they may lose their Chilean properties as a result of next fall's presidential election in that country.

Insurance Men Plan City Parley

The annual sales congress of the Victoria and Island Life Underwriters Association will be held Friday, April 10, at Hollywood Hotel's boardroom. Men from all over the island are expected to attend.

Chief speakers are David M. Blumberg of Knoxville, Tenn., 1963 president of the U.S. Life Underwriters Association, and Don McDaniel of Calgary, president-elect of the Life Underwriters Association of Canada.

There are four sessions, two in the forenoon and two in the afternoon. Registration fee including lunch is $8.

Senator Salvador Allende, one of the two leading contenders for the presidency, said he would nationalize the copper mines and refineries if he won.

The expropriations would be carried out under Chilean law. The two U.S. companies own three of the world's largest copper mines and refineries in Chile. The mines and mills have been under continual labor unrest for a number of years, and strike stoppages have been frequent.

EXTRA SHARES

Directors of Fanny Farmer Candy Shops are proposing to shareholders the outstanding shares of the company be increased by 25 per cent.

Shareholders at a meeting May 31 will be asked to approve the distribution of one new share for each four shares held of record June 3.

BETTER RESULTS

Improved net earnings in the first quarter of 1964 are forecast for B.A. Oil by E. D. Loughney, president, in a letter to shareholders.

Mr. Loughney says the firming of retail prices in the last half of 1963 was an important factor contributing to this improvement.

DOMESTIC PROFITS UP

Dome Petroleum of Calgary improved its net earnings in 1963 to $2,754,568 ($3.08 a share) from $2,088,227 (79 cents) in 1962. The company has retired its long-term debt of $2,415,000.

SKYLINE CHANGES

Three Japanese housing corporations plan to build a total of 42,000 apartment units in Tokyo during 1964.

During 1963, Japan had 170-80 applications for patents, a figure exceeded only by West Germany.

Brentwood Girl Winner In B.C. Speaking Contest

A 17-year-old Brentwood girl has won the B.C. 4-H public speaking contest.

Selena Kelly, 1835 Stelly's Cross Road, was competing at Langley this week after winning the Vancouver Island 4-H championship.

She was awarded the B.C. Institute of Agriculture trophy and the Vancouver Kiwanis gold medal.

Selena, a member of the Saanich 4-H Home Arts Club, attends Claremont High School. She spoke on the future of agriculture.

$254,000,000 Deal

Tacoma, Seattle Likely To Buy Columbia Power

TACOMA (AP) — Tacoma and Seattle city-owned power companies will probably buy a multi-million dollar block of power available under the Columbia River treaty, Tacoma utilities director C. A. Erdahl said Friday.

He said Tacoma and Seattle have tentatively offered to purchase up to 50 per cent of Canada's treaty entitlement for 30 years, worth an estimated $254,000,000, at 3.75 mills per kilowatt-hour.

"If Tacoma contracts for the power it would expect to sell it—probably to California—for the first 10 or 15 years," Erdahl said.

LOWEST COST SOURCE

"After that it probably would become the lowest cost source of new power available for local load growth requirements."

He said it is also possible Tacoma may participate in a combining of public and private power agencies in underwriting a non-federal high voltage intertie which would deliver the Canadian treaty power to California.

Erdahl said he will recommend the purchase, provided that city engineers agree on its feasibility, utilities attorneys pass its legality, and Seattle also goes along.

Car Renter Expands Into Canada

ELIZABETH N. J. (UPI)—Econo-Car International Inc., a U.S.-wide automobile rental system, Friday announced the formation of a wholly Canadian subsidiary, Econo-Car Canada Ltd.

The new company will have dealerships in 25 Canadian cities to begin with. Econo-Car said it also plans to enter the European and Caribbean markets in the near future.

Federal Change

Interest Goes Up On Some Annuities

OTTAWA (CP)—The interest on certain types of federal government annuities has been increased to 5½ per cent from four per cent.

Labor department officials said Friday the basis for calculating premiums on "immediate" annuities and on group plan "deferred" annuities has been revised to bring the interest rate in line with rates paid by most private companies.

PRIVATE PURCHASE

There is no change in the interest rate for "deferred" government annuities bought privately by individuals.

"The new 5½-per-cent rate is more realistic," a senior department official said. The rate became effective April 1.

The higher interest rates will have the effect of reducing the price of "immediate" annuities by varying amounts up to as much as a thousand dollars. The change in interest rate also has the effect of reducing the cost of group annuities.

USUALLY BOUGHT

The four-per-cent rate had been in effect since 1957.

"Immediate" annuities are usually bought by persons in their 50s or 60s, who pay a lump sum and begin to receive immediately monthly annuity payments.

"Deferred" annuities are generally bought by younger people for a relatively low annual premium, with annuity benefits deferred until they are much older, usually about 65.

Auschwitz Survivor Says:

Women, Children Kicked To Death by Nazi Sadist

FRANKFURT (UPI) — A witness survivor of Auschwitz Friday denounced the alleged master torturer of the infamous Nazi death camp as a "born sadist" who laughed while kicking Gypsy women and children to death.

Maximilian Sternol was testifying at the trial of 22 former guards and officials accused of taking part in the murders of up to 4,000,000 persons at the camp in Poland during the Second World War.

BOGIE MOST CRUEL

He told the court the defendant William Boger "was the most cruel..."

"Boger was an ice cold cynic, a born sadist, he didn't mind killing," said Sternol, a German sent to Auschwitz for handing out anti-Nazi leaflets during the war.

His eyes filled with tears as he told how Boger and other Gestapo guards laughed as they kicked "with their jackboots" hundreds of women and children begging for their lives the night Auschwitz Gypsy camp was wiped out by the Nazis.

BEGGED FOR LIVES

"It was awful," Sternol said. "Those women and children kneeling and begging for their lives... they (the Gestapo) stomped and kicked and beat the inmates into trucks to the gas chambers, they killed at least 50 of them. They were brutal."

The little, bald-headed man, whose own ordeal makes him look older than his 70 years, also told of watching Boger shoot down Jews who rebelled against having to go and cremate fellow inmates.

Pollution, Noise Probe Recommended for B.C.

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Workmen's Compensation Act Inquiry was asked Friday to help set up a government-financed $104,000 hygiene laboratory in B.C. that would improve the province's health standards.

The request was made by the Community Chest health council, which said an environmental hygiene branch would look into air pollution, water pollution, radiation control and noise control.

RESPONSE!

Newspaper Advertising Brings Reader Response...through Buying Action!

More buying action results from newspaper advertising because of the atmosphere of believability. You've heard people say, "I know it's true, it's in the papers." The printed word has always been accepted as more honest and binding.

Newspapers report facts; other media offer entertainment. Your advertising in an atmosphere of believability is bound to induce more "want-to-buy" action than that framed in fiction or entertainment.

Newspapers offer another vital element—an atmosphere of timeliness and urgency. This sense of immediacy fosters "here-and-now" sales action that no other print medium can match.

If it's a question of consumer response—newspapers are the answer!

THE DAILY COLONIST

Teachers Spurn Cards

SASKATOON (CP) — The Saskatchewan Teachers' Federation has recommended that teachers in the province refuse to sign social security cards.

G. D. Eamer, executive secretary, said Friday.

He said the action was motivated by the teachers' opposition to recommendations of the Gill royal commission on unemployment "which would place teachers under the Unemployment Insurance Act."

"This would mean an expenditure in Canada of more than $9,000,000 for which we can see no foreseeable benefit either to school boards or to teachers."

APPEARS IT IS

"We feel this sum of money is too much to take from a small segment of the population. If the unemployment insurance fund needs bolstering and it appears it does, it should be bolstered on the basis of a wide population than a few selected groups."

"The terms of our employment on yearly contracts would mean benefits teachers might receive would be negligible."

A similar stand was taken by B.C. teachers at their recent convention.

French Firm Gets Barker From City

A Victoria firm has just shipped a $25,000 mechanical log barker to a French saw-mill.

Designed and built by Nicholson-Murdie Machines Ltd., 327 Harbor Road, the 30,000-pound machine will be used at Gerardmer in the Vosges Mountains of France.

The Nicholson Mechanical Log Barker, as it is called, has been developed by the Victoria firm and its parent company in Seattle.

It will leave Vancouver on the Blankenstein for Le Havre and will be trucked from there to Gerardmer.

Ed Brown, manager of Nicholson-Murdie, said his company makes machinery for the Canadian, U.S. and world markets. Whole-log chippers recently have been sold to Spain and Finland and other machinery has gone to Sweden, Holland, New Zealand and Australia.

Doctors' Strike Stiffens

BRUSSELS (AP) — Positions were stiffening Friday in a nation-wide doctors' strike in Belgium and a spokesman for the rebel medical profession said "we are in a deadlock."

Doctors went on strike Wednesday when their negotiations with the government on a medical reform bill failed.

A trade union leader claimed the doctors objected to the new law because it cut their fees. The doctors said the law violates basic principles of the medical charter and that the reduction of their fees is a subsidiary problem.

The majority of the 10,000 practising doctors in Belgium stopped treating patients after setting up emergency centres manned by a few of them.

In Brussels, hospitals are overcrowded and the army has been called to help with its military hospitals.

Two striking doctors claimed they had been threatened with death and a judicial investigation was opened. Two other doctors had their cars slashed.

Scotswoman Questioned By Officials

WINNIPEG (CP) — Immigration officials detained Mrs. Elizabeth McGarvie, of Edinburgh, here Friday night as she was enroute to her son's home in Vancouver.

A Trans-Canada Airline official said Mrs. McGarvie was still being questioned by immigration department officials at International Airport two hours after she arrived on Flight 853 from Scotland.

The immigration department has refused permission for the woman to enter Canada permanently because arrangements for her settlement at her son's Vancouver home were not satisfactory.

She has permission to enter Canada only as a visitor. Her son, Hume, 37, organizer of the Hong Kong Seamen's Union lives in Vancouver with his wife and seven children.

FAIRER IN AGE

When a man dies in old age we feel that life has somehow been fairer to him, that he has had a chance to sing out all the melody there is in him, think out all his thoughts and complete his plans. This is as though the halibut had struck the wheat before the grain was harvested. To him as a microcosm of justice, the bitter irony of blind fate. Thus Tennyson bemoaned the death of his friend Arthur Hallam and Milton was shocked by "Young Lycidas, dead in his prime."

Is there any age, however, when we can be reconciled to death of creative spirits? Does not every man die like Moses on Nebo's mountain top looking toward a Promised Land which he dreamed of entering but now never can? Dickens died with his last manuscript, "The Mystery of Edwin Drood," incomplete. Michael Angelo left unfinished work, as most have done. De Lesseps would be unconsolated by the construction of the Suez and the brooding on the colossal failure of the Panama Canal.

FULFILL GOD'S WILL

This is the point. We are here to give a soul to increase in comradeship with God, to fulfill God's will for us. Death is only tragic for the man who does not believe in eternal life.

This was Paul's secret as he said, "I am now ready to be offered, and the time of my unmooring is at hand. (What an exquisite simile!) I have kept the faith. How glad I am to do this. He explains, "I kept my eye, not on the things that are temporal, but the things that are eternal."

THE VOICE OF ONE

By REV. DR. FRANK S. MORLEY

Dying on the Cross, Jesus said, "It is finished." What an absurd statement to make when you die at the age of 33! This is our automatic reaction.

Doesn't it seem a tragedy that Shelley, the greatest lyric poet that England, or even Europe for that matter, ever produced in modern times, should be drowned at 30 after a mere 10 years of productive life? The mysterious John Keats was just over 25 years of age when his genius, with its astounding originality, was buried. No more influential poet ever lived than Byron, responsible as he was for Greek independence and setting in motion the fantastic struggle of Balkan nations, who died at the age of 35, a martyr to the cause to which he was devoted.

Do you not feel a twinge that Schubert should die at 31 leaving an "Unfinished Symphony"? The world's most divine musician, Mozart, surely twists your heart-strings by dying at 35.

Fairer in Age

When a man dies in old age we feel that life has somehow been fairer to him, that he has had a chance to sing out all the melody there is in him, think out all his thoughts and complete his plans. This is as though the halibut had struck the wheat before the grain was harvested. To him as a microcosm of justice, the bitter irony of blind fate. Vancouver Girl To Buy Camels

FEZ, Morocco (Reuters)—A Vancouver girl who gave up teaching to bicycle around the world has arrived here to prepare to set herself up in the so-called business.

Muriel Anderson, who graduated as a teacher in British Columbia five years ago, plans to buy 10 baby Moroccan camels and ship them to Copenhagen, Denmark, for 2000 as a start in the business.

She bicycled across Canada and around Europe before her racing bicycle was stolen in Paris.

At Christmas, spent in Scandinavia, she learned there was money to be made in the animal business so she is hoping to make enough from these ventures to take her the rest of the way around the world in a jeep.

But her first task will be to get the 10 young camels for her first shipment from the Moroccan camel market of Goulmine, 100 miles across the desert to the port of Agadir for shipment north.

Miss Anderson says she will drive them across the desert herself.

Umbrella Aplomb a British Trait

By GENE SHEKMAN

The Los Angeles Times

LONDON—It rained today and British bulldoggedness was vindicated. Those umbrellas everyone carried neatly furled during the balmy days of premature spring bloomed Big Ben to Trafalgar Square.

Nothing makes an Englishman grimmer than enough rain to prove that carrying an umbrella at all times pays off in the end. "beardy weather," he says, eagerly unfurling the bamboo-handled protection hanging on his arm.

Whoever invented the umbrella did it for the climate. A Londoner would as soon be caught out of queue as without one. It is as essential as his derby, his half a bitter from the wood at the local pub and the Financial Times.

When the sun is shining, ask him why he carries an umbrella only at your peril. The disdain that serves as reply will chill your marrow and cause you to conclude that you have asked a foolish question.

You gather that ultimate indignity would shroud the Englishman caught in an unexpected shower without his umbrella. If he doesn't own one, naturally he is exempt from such humiliation, but boon that Britain is to umbrellas makers it is a rare Englishman, indeed, who passes his majority umbrellaless.

For the Californian who acorns them or buys a rain hat at the start of the season and loses it promptly at the end, the scene is pregnant with research possibilities especially if he acquires his very first one in London, the umbrella capital of the world.

To the Englishman, an umbrella is as natural as the arm over which he hangs it, hook side out. It sort of grows there, as, in truth, it sort of grows out of his head when he opens it.

Furled or blooming, it is part of the man, an extension of his personality. It can plumb straight and slim from a crooked elbow to add a curious touch of hubbardiery as its owner peers at the paper while docilely waiting for the bus to Tooting or Hackney Wick.

It can lend dignity to the stride of a statesman, or facilitate, testing the solidity of the concrete sidewalk with every step. It can emphasize action when swung up smartly with a flick of the wrist and jabbed down again while walking.

And it can clear a path through Charing Cross station remarkably fast when held horizontally.

That's for an Englishman. But the glories of umbrella-land are not for the uninitiate.

The first time you venture forth furled, determined to handle your first umbrella like a Londoner, you feel as if you are carrying a stovepipe. You are likely to wind up swinging it, which is about as non- as you can get, or even worse, leaning on it.

You are reminded of giving your first recitation as a small child and wondering what to do with the two blocks of granite that only moments before were your hands. Umbrella aplomb is a British trait and an American cousin just ain't got it.

You feel particularly silly when the sun is shining, which it does surprisingly often here. Yearning for reassurance, you note that thousands of sun-kissed derbies are accompanied by umbrellas, the owners of which are attempting to gauge your degree of civilization.

After some consideration, you decide against playing umbrella upmanship—carrying the thing open in anticipation of rain. But when a welcome drizzle begins to fall, you hurriedly unfurl and spring up, the first in your block to do so. Mainly, you think, the thing is to keep rain off. An open umbrella solves its own problem.

For the English, yes. For you, no. They plant their black mushrooms overhead with a single co-ordinated motion, never breaking stride. You fumble. They pull the blooming thing down an instant before they get into the taxi. You end up in the taxi with the open umbrella outside.

On the way to the office, you decide glumly that you have shown very bad form and are in danger of being dubbed the bumbling American, a disgrace to international eclet. The umbrage an umbrella can give!

But as you hook the crook over the hat rack, you forgive yourself. After all, the British have been here a long time. Maybe you can learn. Maybe you can take umbrella lessons.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: This letter will prove that a person is never too old to ask for advice. I am a 70-year-old widow who is being pestered to death by a male neighbor.

This man is 77 years of age and as spry as a colt. He catches me when I am working in the garden and sticks like a corn plaster. I've tried locking the door on him but he raps at the window until I finally let him in. Once he put his arms around me when I was brewing tea and begged me for just one little kiss. I told him if he didn't stop being so silly I would telephone his wife. He said, "She'll never believe you. I haven't kissed her in years."

Well, Ann, he was right. I telephoned his wife and she said I must be crazy because he is harmless.

Last October I invited a lady friend to spend a couple of weeks with me. It didn't help. He continued to hang around and he even made a few plays for her. (She is 67.) Tell me how to get rid of this damned fool.—CANADIAN READER.

Dear Reader: Please don't give me any static about how this man pesters you. A couple of no-nonsense sentences and a door that stays locked would solve your problem permanently. He sounds like he's in his second childhood—and so do you.

Dear Ann Landers: For eight years I was married to a sadist. Lord knows I tried to make the marriage work but both my doctor and my clergyman told me to leave before he put

George Clark, president of a beauty company and producer of the 17th annual spring style show to be held in San Francisco this weekend, said, "women's hatters aren't mad... they're sad... and so are the women who wear hats today." Clark also said "The woman of today isn't given much choice. She spends hours and dollars in a beauty salon to take advantage of one of her most beautiful assets, her hair, then she either must go out without a hat or ruin her hair style with a hat." —(AP Photofax)

Basic Wave Necessary

By JEAN SHEAF

"TORONTO (CP)—Shampoo and a hair brush, used often, keep hair looking its best. That never changes.

What does change is the best way of setting and keeping a new hair style.

It should have a professional start, says Joyce Andaloro, Toronto hairdresser and demonstrator of hair preparations. A hairdresser should cut and shape it and, says Miss Andaloro, most of today's hair styles need a basic wave.

"It should usually be a soft wave. The amount of curl you get depends on the size of the rod used, not on the time the permanent is on. Usually no professional permanent should be left in more than 10 minutes. That doesn't apply to home permanents, however. They should be used as the instructions indicate."

Miss Andaloro estimates that most women need permanents every three to five months, depending on how fast their hair grows and the style they wear.

"To take care of it at home, people want to use what is easiest to work with, and that's not always what is best.

"Smooth rollers are better than brushes for the hair because they cause less breakage. Women should try back-brushing instead of back-combing. It's less intense."

You should use spray to keep the set in place but don't make the mistake of using it too heavily. Miss Andaloro says. Too much can dry the hair. She recommends holding the spray can at least a foot away from the head, and also favors using hair conditioner as well as a setting spray.

Age is a factor in the kind of hair care and treatment, she says. "If teen-agers would just realize it, all they have to do is brush their hair. That gives young hair a sheen without preparations."

a mistake if anything goes wrong." Women might feel bolder about trying a new style if the hairdresser would show them how to take care of it, she says. "It is to his advantage. It is good for his reputation if the hairdo looks good longer."

She says a new hair coloring however fashionable, must be chosen carefully to blend with skin coloring. "Your hairdresser should be able to help you decide what hair style would suit you best and suit the way you live. He certainly knows what the trend is and he should be able to do it."

Winning Contract
By HOWARD SCHENCKEN and RICHARD L. FREY
When declarer is cashing a long suit, the defenders may be put to an intricate series of discards. But there are ways of gaining relief from pressure. Sometimes you can tell that the contract cannot be defeated unless partner has a particular card, and in that case the defender under pressure may be able to throw all his cards in that suit.
On the final round of bidding, North might have been pardoned for passing or signing off with three clubs, but his actual choice was a good one. The club suit was magnificent and the diamond ace was a certain entry. North hoped that this card would be particularly valuable because South had bid the suit. He was disappointed. In this respect, but three no-trump was still a fair contract, although it should have been beaten because of the 5-3 heart division.
West's heart queen won the first trick. East encouraging with the eight. The heart jack went to the king and ace, and now declarer exerted pressure by ruffing off the clubs. West felt it would be unwise to unguard diamonds since declarer had bid them, and the heart discard was poor, for when declarer drove out the spade ace, the defenders no longer had enough tricks to set the contract.
West could count declarer for six club tricks and two red aces. If he also had the spade ace or the diamond king, the contract was unplayable, so West should bet on East having both these cards. Once that is realized, West can throw diamonds with impunity, and keep all the hearts. No need to fear that East lacks a third heart to put him in with—without it, East would have a third heart (McClure Syndicate Feature)

Free Seeds—Hurry!

By M. V. (NUT), FREE

If you haven't written in yet for your free Colanist seeds of the annual Tricolor chrysanthemum, I think you had better get that letter or coupon away within the next few days. I thought I had a pretty big bagful of these hard-to-come-by seeds from Sweden, but they are going out of here at a fantastic clip, and I am always haunted by the fear we may run out and be compelled to substitute some other seeds. This happened the year we gave away seeds of the Zvolansk multiflora sweet peas—we had to substitute something not quite as good for the last 3,000 requests.

The enthusiastic response to this particular seed offer seems to point up the need for some really striking and dramatic cut flowers, and reflects the growing interest in the art of floral arrangement. The Tricolor mum is, of course, a flower arranger's bonanza, with its circles and zones of contrasting colors, as well as being a conversation piece in the outdoor garden.

I pointed out yesterday these seeds may be sown indoors or under glass, or directly into the outdoor garden. I described a simple and foolproof method of indoor starting; today, let's have a look at the outdoor technique.

In timing an outdoor sowing, we don't have to worry now about frost damage, for we are pretty well home free from here on in except for a few notorious frost pockets in low-lying areas. Our concern is more over the danger of gusty spring winds and the danger of heavy, battering rain flattening the tiny emerging seedlings.

For this reason, then, I think it is best, when sowing very small seeds outdoors, to sow on a small, specially constructed seed bed in a wind-protected part of the garden rather than in the beds where the flowers are expected to bloom. Sow very thinly, spacing the seeds about 1 1/2 inches apart in the row and covering shallowly with sifted soil, or better still with damp peat moss or vermiculite. Keep the rows short, so that it will be possible to cover the sown ground with some kind of extemporized frame.

As I pointed out earlier this week, sown seeds and very small seedlings don't take very kindly to overhead watering, and I always try to fix things so that no watering will be required until after the seeds are up and the baby plants nicely established. One way to accomplish this is to arrange for a long-lasting supply of moisture to filter up from below the seeds, by burying some soggy wet peat moss about four inches below the soil surface in a line just under where the seeds are to be sown.

Some of the most useful pieces of equipment in my garden are ancient wooden seed flats in which the bottoms have rotted. The perished bottoms have been knocked out, leaving a shallow wooden frame without top or bottom and about four inches deep. I tack sheets of plastic film over some of these and a layer of chamois cloth on others, and these make excellent coverings for nursery patches of ground.

I use the plastic-covered frame over the sown seeds until the tiny seedlings come through, as the plastic ensures a warm, steamy atmosphere that makes for rapid and vigorous germination. As soon as the baby plants appear, the chamois-covered frames are substituted, as these give the plants lots of air and not too much warmth, while breaking the force of raindrops and keeping off gusty winds.

Groucho Marx Returning To the Screen

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—Groucho Marx will return to the screen for the first time in 15 years in his first dramatic role, in The Loved Ones, the Evelyn Waugh satire on the American way of death—not to be confused with the Jessica Mitford best seller.

Ava Gardner in Madrid will follow Sophia Loren in Rome, which followed Elizabeth Taylor in London. The pay for each actress: $100,000.

Fahnestock now wants to be known as an actor rather than a singer. He will in future use his full name of Fabian Farnes, after his current film, Ride the Wild Surf. It will take some getting used to. If the script is ready, Terence Young will direct Fanny Hill as well as Moll Flanders. And that's a party in any language.

Looked like the old days of glamour when Jack Lemmon's co-star, Vera Lynn, for How to Murder Your Wife, arrived in town. The blonde brought 30 pieces of luggage, a Balenciaga wardrobe, and an $18,000 Italian sports car. I hope she is more careful with the car than Via Damsa was with his Italian racer. Vic and his wife are recovering from the crash.

Capucine, whom you can now see on the screen in all her slim splendor in Pink Panther, has gained 10 pounds since she stopped smoking. And on her it looks good. Cap is one of the fortunate who can eat all she likes and I don't believe she will ever get fat, though she would like to be fatter. "Sex appeal," she says firmly, "is not counted in pounds or kilos."

Comedian Shelley Berman, making his first appearance on the screen in The Best Man, would have stolen the picture but for the fact that Lee Tracy beats him to it. I thoroughly enjoyed this film, produced by Stuart Miller and Larry Turman.

The Beatles are number one on the hit parade in Germany as well. And everywhere in the world it seems. Beatles Paul and John have written six new songs for their movie. The Beatles' take from America alone this last year was around $14,000,000. Their biography in book form will soon be out, and watch it zoom to the top of the best sellers. They are the most fantastic success story of this generation.

A lawyer I know in London is positive that the marriage of Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton would not be considered legal in England. I have news for him. They don't care. All Elizabeth cares about is being able to sign her name Mrs. Richard Burton. Of course if they had some children, it would complicate matters. But I doubt whether they will, except by adoption.

Tarita left her son M. Tahiti, but brought back color photographs of the boy for her good friend Marion Brands to see and admire.

The film on Mr. Richard Burton, not to be confused by the actor of the same name, will be produced by colorful Joe Levine. And he is interested in having Daga Wynter, who doesn't make many films these days, play Sir Richard's wife, Isabel. Sir Richard was the intrepid explorer who discovered the source of the Nile and was the first white man to visit, in 1830, the forbidden city of Hara.

Hitch, looking like a mischievous version of one of those plastic dolls that you try to tip up and can't, told me of his future plans. "I shall frighten you in three dimensions," he said. "My next film is an adventure story (terrifying of course) in cinerama. Then I will stop & Harrie's wife Rose into a television special. If it goes well, I will do it as a film, with the title, The Island That Likes to Be Visited. Fay Compton, the original Mary Rose on the London stage, will be his technical advisor. Miss Hedron will star in both projects.

And another story, told me by Hitch. "A mother wrote to me, and said, 'I have a problem. My child saw the French film, Diabolique, and now won't take a bath. She saw Psycho and won't take a shower. It's beginning to get very unpleasant. What shall I do?' Mr. Hitchcock wrote back, 'Send her to the dry cleaners.'"

LONDON—In Rome I met a strange, knely country of white light and black trees and lonely castles and horsemanship vanishing over the hill and Death playing chess with knights and marmosets and clowns and travelling magicians, that's what Sweden's like.

If anyone tried to tell me Sweden was full of rather dull businessmen who made steel, I'd laugh at him. I know better. You must let me tell you sometime about the polyphedral infrastructure of a Bergman scene where this man opens a door and walks down a long corridor. Now, what that scene really means...

Rome is full of all nationalities playing range riders and sheriffs and bad men of the Old West in the shadow of the Colosseum. Avengers of the Red Valley—and you can imagine the whole picture from that title—is being shot in Rome with a polyglot cast, mostly in Italian. Then it'll be dubbed into English and shown in Japan.

The Orientals don't accept a Western as authentic unless it's in English. Of course, they don't understand English. They sit there listening to those strange English noises, reading Japanese subtitles and feeling obscurely comfortable. Ah, the mysterious West.

Lex Barker, a Hollywood reject who is now about the biggest movie star in Germany, was the star of a Western shot in Yugoslavia which broke all box office records in Germany. The story was by Karl May. You never heard of Karl May and neither did I, but he was the Zane Grey of Germany. He'd never even been in the United States, much less the West, but his scores of books about the Old West were so successful that one German publishing house publishes nothing else.

The French are looney about Westerns—I mean the pictures shot by Americans—and they have invented a whole mystique about these terrible pictures that is astonishingly ingenious and totally ridiculous.

A French movie buff will sit through the same lousy Western 21 times and then he'll write learned treatises about the inner symbolism and polyphonic composition of one scene.

You and I know how that scene was shot. Some director bawled out, "Hey, Joe! The Indians are coming from over there. The stagecoach will be coming down this road. Ride down the hill, shooting. And hurry up. I'm hungry." But, for heaven's sake, let's not disillusion the French.

I suppose we all do it to somebody else's picture. I have seen all of Ingmar Bergman's movies save one, in Swedish. That one, dubbed in English, disappointed me because I missed those mysterious and infinitely romantic Swedish noises.

I learned all I know about Sweden from Ingmar Bergman. You want to know what Sweden

Shedding Stops Wedding

SAIGON (AP)—A wedding 50 miles northwest of Saigon was broken up recently when the bridegroom's spurned common-law wife crashed the ceremony and did a strip tease.

The bridegroom, a mechanic named Le Ngoc, was just about to tie the nuptial knot when his uninvited common-law wife appeared. As she stripped and danced, she sang that Le Ngoc had abandoned her with two children.

The bride fled.

Wasylenchuk

Jury Out For Night In Seattle

SEATTLE (AP)—The federal court jury deliberating the fate of 51-year-old John Wasylenchuk went to bed without reaching a decision Friday night.

The case was thrown into confusion when juror William Roper said he was ill shortly after the jury began its deliberations of the murder and robbery charges against the Canadian parolee.

Judge William Lindbert advised an alternate, but it was then discovered that alternates may not be seated in a federal case after the jury has received the case.

SENT FOR DOCTOR

The only solution seemed to be to declare a mistrial or to get both sides to agree to an 11-man jury. The defence declined the latter solution and Judge Lindbert sent for a doctor to examine Roper.

The doctor gave Roper a penicillin shot and pronounced him able to continue.

Vital Moment in History

By JOSEPH MacSWEENE
Canadian Press

The new malevolent turn in relations between the Soviet Union and Red China dramatizes what is surely an epochal moment in history.

The rush of events in the last 10 years has brought the world — it seems suddenly — to a watershed of change in which political gospels are being challenged everywhere.

British observers were deeply impressed by the recent speech of J. William Fulbright, chairman of the United States Senate foreign relations committee, who said his own country is clinging to old myths in the face of new realities.

Perhaps they are even more impressed by reaction to the speech, which indicated that some of what Fulbright said — particularly regarding Russia — is regarded as commonplace in the U.S. except in official pronouncements.

They are aware that Fulbright wasn't speaking for U.S. administration — it would be more true to say he was speaking to it — but, as one periodical put it:

"The nub of what Mr. Fulbright had to say about relations with European communism — namely, that the Communist countries are diverse and need to be treated with discrimination — had been said previously in February and March by Mr. Dean Rusk, the secretary of state, and at least two other officials of the state department."

'Tired of Being Messenger Boy

for Commons'

JOBLESS PAY BLOCKED

Meeting Today

Blue Monday
For 46,000?

OTTAWA (UPI) — One determined Senator Friday refused to give unanimous consent to pass a government bill to replenish the unemployment insurance fund, which will go bankrupt this weekend.

Senator Gratian O'Leary, the fiery Irish Conservative from Ottawa, told the Senate he would not allow passage of a special appropriation bill sent up from the Commons earlier in the day.

Members in the Commons had quickly passed the bill, which covers $131,000,000 of the $241,000,000 final supplementary estimates they had debated last week.

HOPES DASHED

But Senator O'Leary dashed their hopes for quick Senate approval and assent last night. The Senate does not meet again until 8 p.m. Monday.

A labor department spokesman made it clear that, since the bill was not made law Friday, the Unemployment Insurance Commission would have no money to pay benefits Monday.

FROM ALL SIDES

Of the $131,000,000 total, up to $55,000,000 could be earmarked for the fund.

The Senate vibrated with criticism from all sides throughout the week because it was forced to sit idle during its Easter holidays while the Commons argued over the final supplementary estimates of last year.

Criticism continued Friday as once more it was asked to waive its rule and give immediate passage to the bill.

THREE DAYS

Under normal conditions the Senate would require two days' notice for second reading of a bill and another day for third and final reading.

To operate any other way requires unanimous consent from all senators.

Senator O'Leary had given notice Tuesday he would resist further Commons attempts to treat the upper chamber as a "messenger boy" and a "mere megaphone" for the Commons.

SHORTEST SPEECH

The Commons proceedings of the past week had insulted and degraded parliament, he said.

Giving the shortest speech of the afternoon, he rose simply to say "I will not give consent to passage of this bill tonight on third reading."

OWN ANNOYANCE

Senator Connolly, who expressed his own annoyance at the way the Senate was treated by the Commons and kept waiting around all week long, said: "I think we all admire the stand he proposed to take on behalf of the Senate."

But he asked Senator O'Leary to reconsider in view of the urgency of approving the money for the unemployment fund.

But when Senator Connolly rose to seek unanimous consent, Senator O'Leary stood again and said: "No."

Sensor Connolly promised the senators he would urge his colleagues in the government to see if Commons rules can be altered so all money supply bills could be dealt with in the

OTTAWA (CP) — Labor Minister MacEachen scheduled an emergency meeting today with the Unemployment Insurance Commission to consider ways of paying an estimated 46,000 insurance claims Monday.

Laval Fortier, chief commissioner of the Unemployment Insurance Commission, later told reporters some, and possibly all, the 46,000 claimants paid in cash at local unemployment offices may not receive their money Monday.

Claims range between $8 a week for a single person and $36 a week for a married claimant. Those slated to receive money Monday would normally receive a payment for two weeks.

Mr. Fortier said it may be possible to make some or all of the claims for cash payments by delaying the mailing of cheques to those paid in that way until after final parliamentary action on the government's money bill.

Labor Minister MacEachen said at a hastily summoned press conference with Mr. Fortier it is likely some claimants will be unable to get their money Monday. But, if the bill received its final approval and royal assent Monday night, the delay would be only one day.

Mr. Fortier said the unemployment insurance fund — maintained by contributions from employers, employees and the federal government — needs an estimated $1,500,000 or $2,000,000 Monday. Some money still may be held by the five regional treasury offices which would provide a precise figure at 6 a.m. PST Monday.

Jittery Alaskans Run Into Streets

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Anchorage, heavily damaged by an earthquake a week ago, was shaken sharply Friday by another tremor that sent jittery residents streaming into the streets.

Police said they had no immediate reports of injuries and said a quick survey showed areas which had suffered heavily a week ago apparently escaped further damage.

Valdez, devastated a week ago, reported the quake was felt there but it was a light tremor with no injuries or further damage reported.

The University of Washington said the shock measured 7.5 on its Richter scale, making it the largest of more than 50 aftershocks since the Good Friday tremor. The destructive quake hit 8.7 on the scale.

The latest casualty figures for the entire quake area show 129 dead or missing and presumed dead.

Adlai Warns U.S.

'Be Ever More Vigilant'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Adlai Stevenson, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, warned Friday that the current Russian-Chinese rift should not

"pull us into a false sense of security." Stevenson, in San Francisco to help set up plans for the 20th anniversary of the founding of the United Nations, said it would be "a tragic mistake for us to draw comfort from the break between the two Red giants."

"We must not look to this apparent break as a victory for our side," he said. "Instead, we must be even more vigilant and look to our own well-being and security." Stevenson said the great changes the world is undergoing mean that "we must be ever vigilant to their ramifications and we must be ready to provide the leadership that has been thrust upon us."

Red Split No Help Rusk Says

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk yesterday cautioned against any expectation that Russia's widening split with Red China will lead to any dramatic improvement in relations between Moscow and Washington.

In fact he told a news conference, the Sino-Soviet breach probably was one of the reasons there has been no great progress toward settling major issues between the United States and the Soviet Union.

He said Russia was preoccupied with the mounting feud between Premier Nikita Khrushchev and the militant Chinese Reds who have called for "liquidation" of the Russian leader's policy of peaceful co-existence.

Russians Seek Help In Europe

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union campaigned yesterday for East European support in what it predicted would be a "grim and apparently long struggle" with Communist China.

The government newspaper Izvestia published expressions of support for the Kremlin policy of peaceful co-existence from Russian laborers, scientists and foreign communists in Bulgaria, Mongolia and Hungary.

FAST ACTION
Most of East Europe speedily reported the historic anti-Chinese declaration of chief Soviet ideologist Mikhail Suslov challenging China to a face-to-face meeting.

Publication itself was an indication of support for Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev's peaceful many went a step further to co-existence line and East Germany made this clear.

The East German news agency ADN prefaced the 30,000-word Suslov statement with the remark it "comprises a critique and political evaluation of the false, anti-Leninist attitudes of the Chinese Communist Party leadership."

Alderman to Ask Councilman Pay Hike

VANCOUVER (CP) — A notice of motion will be filed by Ald. Phillip Lipp asking a 33½ per cent increase in the pay of Mayor Bill Rathie and aldermen.

The increase would take the mayor's salary from $12,000 to $16,000 and aldermen's from $3,600 to $4,800, new maximums set by city charter amendment passed by the legislature.

Greeks Open Fire On Peace Enforcers

NICOSIA, Cyprus (UPI) — United Nations officials said Greek Cypriots opened fire and pinned down British paratroopers of the U.N. peace force Friday during an hour-long battle in which a Greek and a Turkish Cypriot were killed and two Turks wounded.

CHALLENGE
None of the British troops was hit, but the UN sources said the Greek Cypriots deliberately fired repeatedly at the blue beret-clad men in what appeared to be the most serious challenge to the UN peace-keeping operation since it went into action. The UN sources said the "irregulars," and said the wounded man received no treatment.

A senior UN officer conferred with Greek Cypriot Interior Minister George Papadopoulos, who controls the police force. Informed sources said he accused the Greek Cypriots of "deliberately and knowingly" firing on the Britons.

It was the second shooting incident reported Friday. Earlier, a Cypriot was killed and two were wounded in fighting on the north coast of Cyprus at the village of Kato Pyrgos.

To Resume Relations U.S., Panama Agree

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and Panama agreed Friday to end at once their 11-week break of diplomatic relations and to discuss promptly differences which were climaxed in bloody January rioting in the Central American country.

An agreement to restore relations severed Jan. 17 and to seek a settlement of long-standing disputes was signed at the Pan American Union amid considerable fanfare.

President Johnson then talked by telephone with Panama's President Roberto Chiari. A short time later, Johnson designated Robert B. Anderson, special assistant to the secretary of state, as the U.S. emissary to seek an end to differences which go back to the 1903 treaty which gave the U.S. perpetual control of the Panama Canal Zone.

"This is truly a great day for the American people, for Panama, for all the Western Hemisphere and for all freedom-loving people everywhere," said Johnson.

Goulart Found In Uruguay Cabinet Named

RIO DE JANEIRO — Brazil's new president, Paschoal Ranieri Mazzilli, said today he had information that deposed president Joao Goulart has left Brazilian territory.

Meanwhile, police officials at Montevideo said early today Goulart is in Uruguay.

APPOINTMENTS

After flying here from Brasilia to cope with Brazil's acute economic problems and the aftermath of the revolutionary upheaval that put him in office Thursday, Mazzilli announced these ministerial appointments:

Justice and education — Luiz Antonio de Gama E. Silva; war — Gen. Arthur da Costa E. Silva; navy — Vice Admiral Augusto Rademaker Grunewald; air — Brig. Francisco de Assis Correia de Mello; finance — Otavio Gouveia de Bulhões; foreign — Vasco Leites de Cunha; labor —

Arnaldo Lopes Suassund; president of the Bank of Brazil — Arnaldo Valtier Blank; president of Petrobras oil monopoly — Marshal Ademar de Queiroz.

FOREIGN POLICY

Asked about foreign policy, Mazzilli said "Brazil will fulfill its traditional foreign policy." This was interpreted to mean he intends to end the so-called independent policy that had envisaged closer relations with the Soviet bloc and a cooling of relations with the United States.

Goulart's wife and two children arrived Friday at a small airport near Montevideo to stay with friends and prepare for his arrival.

SEVERAL DEAD

Coincidental with reports of widespread arrests in the southern Brazilian city of Porto Alegre came word Friday night of fighting with "several dead and many wounded."

DUNCAN—"This is one of the most vile types of conduct I've had to deal with."

Magistrate D. K. McAdam told Gerald Littlejohn of Duncan when he sentenced him to one year imprisonment on three charges.

The one-year sentence includes one year for common assault of Mrs. Helen Alphonse, one year for assaulting the woman's small child, and three months for possession of liquor while an interdict, but all run concurrently.

Another six-month sentence was given to Garnet Baker of Cobble Hill for false pretences by trying to pay for merchandise with a worthless cheque.

DUNCAN—Richard Daniels of Duncan pleaded guilty to a second impaired driving offence and driving while under suspension, and was sentenced to 28 days' imprisonment.

Included in the prison term are 14 days for failing to report payment for the first impaired charge. He will be prohibited from driving for two years.

Disaster Fund To Aid Indians

PORT ALBERNI — Mayor Les Hammer, Port Alberni, and Mayor Fred Bishop, Alberni, speaking on behalf of Alberni Valley disaster committee, announced Friday that it has decided to change the official name to the Alberni Valley and West Coast disaster fund.

"It is apparent, through reports now coming in, that other West Coast points have also been devastated in various degree. Zeballos and Hot Spring Cove are among those hit.

"It has been decided to extend the scope of the fund, set up last Saturday, to include these smaller centres which have very little, if any, facilities for making an appeal for assistance," he said.

It is planned that the two mayors, along with a representative with possibly one or two more persons of each of the senior governments and of organized labor shall administer the fund.

NANAIMO — A rear-end collision at Terminal and Townsend Thursday resulted in $400 damage to two cars.

Drivers William W. Nash of Wellington and William D. Brown of Nanaimo were not injured.

Friday, cars driven by Leslie Sterlin of Wellington and John Ballance of Nanaimo were involved in a collision at Nico and Milton. RCMP estimated damages at $200.

NANAIMO — Nanaimo's debutantes will be presented to Lieutenant Governor and Mrs. G. R. Fowkes at a Navy League ball at the Shoreline Hotel May 19.

Carol and Leona White, 18 and 17, are daughters of Douglas White, chief of the Indians on the Nanaimo reserve. This is perhaps the first time in British Columbia that an Indian girl has appeared as a debutante.

Other girls to be introduced at the ball are: Susan Cameron, Qualicum; Elizabeth Mary Dobson, Duncan; Mary Dunn, Port Alberni; Lamma John, Nanaimo; twins Janice and Judith Reifel, Nanaimo; Isobel Sanderson, Nanaimo; Jenice Smith, Nanaimo; Suzanne Williams, Nanaimo.

KELOWNA — Susan McCarthy, "Miss Alberni" has been selected as "Miss Sweetheart" by the B.C. Teen Association.

More than 200 delegates are attending the three-day annual meeting of the association. Princess chosen at the teens' dance Thursday night were Rene Tigan, "Miss Oliver," and Betty Dunlop, "Miss Kelowna."

Each teen town entered its own sweetheart candidate. All modelled and gave a short speech on teen town.

Navy Aids Flood Victims

Two ships of the RCN Pacific Command have contributed $350 to the Alberni Flood Relief Fund.

HMCS Skeena contributed $200 and HMCS Naden donated $125 with contributions of $25 coming from the wardroom, chief's mess, PO's mess, Fleet Club and the Ship's Fund.

Radio Hookup Studied

NORTH COWICHAN — One of the subjects to be discussed at the next fire committee meeting to be chaired by Coun. John Cannon, will be a $2,100 radio communication system between the four volunteer fire departments in the North Cowichan municipality.

Until a final decision is made the Civil defence funds will remain intact.

Council recently decided that the extension of traction blocks at the Osborne Bay boat launching ramp, which would cost $480, will be carried out next year.

That's a Long Time To Be Climbing a Hill

Constable Commended

NANAIMO — An RCMP constable from the Nanaimo detachment was presented Friday with an official commendation from Commissioner George MacKinnon commanding officer of the force.

Cst. E. L. Bailey is credited with saving the life of Ronald Houltham, severely injured in a waterfront explosion here October 18.

Inspector G. M. MacKay commanding officer of Victoria subdivision presented the commendation to Constable Bailey on behalf of the commissioner at an inspection parade at RCMP headquarters.

In Nanaimo, Inspector MacKay read the statements of Coroner Russell Inkster and Dr. Eric Cooper who indicated the injured seaman would have died if Cst. Bailey had not worked calmly and quickly the way he did to stop bleeding from the man's leg.

Mayor Pete Maffeo and city officials attended the ceremony.

DUNCAN — Local Ayrshire breeders scored two first places in the national production list, according to a notification from the Ayrshire Breeders of Canada this week.

A cow raised by the Queen Margaret's School Farm, Innesfree Glenariff, now owned by John Balme of Cobble Hill was first in the 10 years and over class with 11,237 pounds of milk and 536 pounds of butterfat.

The second high scoring animal, but in the four-year class, Stratford's Marietta belongs to North Cowichan Reeve Donald Morton.

She gave 12,508 pounds of milk and 551 pounds of butterfat.

NANAIMO—Clifford Williams has discovered some shells at a city excavation on Pine Street that must have had mountain-erecting blood in them.

They're just ordinary clam shells but what makes them interesting is the fact that they are millions of years old.

The largest shell is one of the clam family that was abundant in the upper-cretaceous era more than 15,000,000 years ago.

This indicates that Pine Street, which is at the crest of a hill rising from Nanaimo's harbor, was once at the bottom of the ocean.

City crews are blasting along Pine Street to level the road bed, and Mr. Williams, who has a large collection of fossilized shells from the coastal area at his home north of Ladysmith, has found the remains of many of these ancient bi-valve molluscs.

Dr. D. B. Quayle of the biological station in Nanaimo identified the fossils and said the largest shell was one of an ancient clam family whose main characteristic was that one-half of the shell overlapped the other. The small clams found on the beaches on the east coast of Vancouver Island are very distant cousins of this old fossil.

Saanich Police Chief Says

Juveniles Get Off Too Lightly

By MIKE GADSBY
Juvenile delinquents between the ages of 16 and 18 are being treated far too lightly in B.C. courts, Saanich Police Chief W. A. Pearson said yesterday.

Chief Pearson's department was plagued recently by scores of complaints of break-ins and enterings, vandalism and automobile offences, most of which have been traced to juveniles.

Seven juveniles in the last week alone have been arrested by Saanich police for a variety of indictable offences and vandalism.

"B.C. and Alberta are the only provinces in Canada where these youths would appear in juvenile court," said Chief Pearson.

All youth arrested in the recent roundup are 16 or over.

"It is too drastic to take mug pictures and fingerprints of any juvenile who commits a small crime," he said. "But a youth of 16 or 17 should automatically be raised to adult court on a second charge of an indictable offence."

"I think these offenders should be given a chance to live down their records," he added. "If they stay out of trouble for three or five years their records should be destroyed and forgotten about. They shouldn't be haunted by them all their lives."

Chief Pearson also advocates adult court for juvenile traffic offenders, and his opinion is shared by police chiefs throughout the province.

"If a juvenile is given the right and responsibility to drive a car he should also be willing to stand up to the penalties imposed by the Motor Vehicles Act."

"Juvenile offenders face only nominal fines and short licence suspensions under the present setup," he said. "A 17-year-old who drives while he is impaired is just as much a potential killer as an adult driver, but he is often fined only about $25 for the offence."

A similar offence in adult court in Victoria carries a fine of $300 or more.

"This light punishment is a major contributing factor to the negligence of juveniles in driving."

Oak Bay Police Chief Robert Smith said he agrees with Chief Pearson on this.

"In Vancouver and a few other Mainland municipalities juveniles can now be prosecuted in adult court, and at the last meeting of B.C. police chiefs it was agreed this should be extended to the rest of the province," said Chief Smith.

"Manitoba and B.C. are the only provinces that set the juvenile age at under 18. In Alberta girls under 18 are also treated as juveniles. B.C. police chiefs agree that this should be changed, and there is speculation now that the Juvenile Delinquency Act may be revised to this effect."

Chief Pearson added that many juvenile repeaters are still simply "slapped on the wrist" when they go to juvenile court.

"If they knew they were going to be treated more harshly it would probably encourage them to think twice about breaking the law."

"I don't know if this is the solution or not, but I think that as long as the rod is spared this vandalism and utter disregard for private and public property is going to go on."

Chief Pearson

Port Alberni Damage $8,000

Two Families Flee Flames

PORT ALBERNI — With accommodation stretched to the limit as flood victims look for homes in the Twin Cities, two more families were left homeless by a fire in a small apartment house just after midnight Thursday.

William Harryhorock, his wife and three children occupied the upstairs suite at 120 First Avenue South, a building owned by Thomas Jackson.

THREE CHILDREN

In the downstairs suite was Mrs. S. Balcke with her three children.

Damage to the Harryhorock's furniture and other possessions was estimated at $2,000. The family carried no insurance.

There was little damage to furnishings of the Balcke suite.

WARNED OTHERS

Mr. Harryhorock was reported to have been awakened when the fire started in his apartment and was able to get his family out and warn the other occupants of the house.

Damage to the building, believed to be covered by insurance, was assessed at $6,000.

Youth Jailed Six Months In Duncan Boy's Death

NANAIMO — A Duncan youth, found guilty of manslaughter in the death of 14-months in the young offenders' unit at Oakalla Prison farm.

Dennis Roy Cline, 17, reached for his weeping mother as he left the accused's box after hearing sentence pronounced Friday by Mr. Justice J. G. A. Hutcheson. A six-month indeterminate term follows the prison sentence.

He has been sentenced to six months in the young offenders' unit at Oakalla Prison farm.

Mr. Justice Hutcheson said the case has caused him a great deal of concern.

"I have had the parents in mind, what this meant to them, but they are not before me. This is not a proper case for a suspended sentence," he said.

Mr. Justice Hutcheson told Cline:

"The jury has found you guilty of causing the death of a young boy. Perhaps the results of your actions are far more serious than you intended or anticipated. I cannot overlook the fact you left him on the ground and went on your way. You left that boy in distress."

GIVE A SCARE

Cline had testified he chased the Nesbitt boy to "give him a scare." He said Nesbitt seemed to trip over something and fell to the ground.

David Bosains and Sharon Hagen, both in the same car as Cline the night of the boy's death, had told the court they went to where Nesbitt was lying on the ground a few feet from Maple Bay Road and after an attempt to get him on his feet they left.

BRAIN DAMAGE

Dr. Florence Wilson, a Victoria pathologist, said Nesbitt died of asphyxiation when he became unconscious because of brain damage and was unable to cough his own stomach contents out of his lungs.

Joseph McKenna, defence counsel, asked Mr. Justice Hutcheson to give Cline a suspended sentence and reviewed the court appearances of the youth since Nesbitt's death last summer.

Mr. McKenna asked: "Does he need greater discipline than he has suffered through his conviction and through the ordeal of all these court appearances?"

Four Years for Rape

NANAIMO — A 23-year-old circus worker from Edmonton was sentenced in Assize Court Friday to four years in the British Columbia penitentiary.

Robert Glen Ward was convicted of the rape of a 27-year-old Nanaimo mother of three Sept. 23, 1963.

Mr. Justice J. G. A. Hutcheson of Vancouver told Ward he showed "a complete disregard for the laws of the land" as he reviewed Ward's six previous convictions which ranged from assault to theft.

Monday an Alert Bay man will stand trial for the capital murder of Rosalind Louise Weddams, 10, at Alert Bay Nov. 7, 1963.

Log Kills Father Of Five

TAHSE — A 32-year-old father of five was killed in a logging accident at Fair Harbor, near here, Thursday.

Police identified the victim as Carl Schenckfeld, 25, of Surrey, employed by the Tahsa Co.

A company spokesman said Schenckfeld was an engineer operating a machine, the cable of which had snapped into a pile.

He caught a piece of log got caught in the main cable and crashed through the roof of the machine cab, killing Schenckfeld.

Of Mice And What?

J. H. Gray, 5408 West Saanich Road, has mice in his attic. At least he hopes it's mice.

Several weeks ago, he put out nine traps in his basement. He caught nine mice with very little difficulty.

Last week, he put a trap in his attic. Next day the bait was missing, but the trap was sprung, and for six successive days now—the same thing.

He has chased the bait—place of evens—to the trap trigger. Each morning, only the string remains.

"Amazing," Mr. Gray says. "Maybe we have discovered a new type of creature. I just don't know what to think."

Orchestra Chooses City Boy

A 14-year-old violinist is the first Victorian chosen for the 1964 National Youth Orchestra and the youngest Victorian ever chosen in the Canadian group's four-year history.

Appointment of Mark Butler, 2684 Sea View Road, son of Rev. Canon Hilary Butler of Christ Church Cathedral, came Friday from orchestra manager Eugene Kaish in Toronto and was made by the boy's teacher, James Fraser.

Young Butler is a Grade 10 student at Victoria High School.

Plywood Theft Baffling

PORT ALBERNI — Still a mystery to police here is the disappearance of a truckload of plywood reported stolen from Tom Bros. Ltd., trucking firm premises on Rogers Street, on April 1.

The 1961 model Chevrolet truck with B.C. licence C38-677 was loaded with 150 sheets of plywood valued at approximately $1,600.

Navy Telling Navy What's Wrong

By DON GAIN

Everybody in the navy, from ensign to commodore, has been invited to tell the senior service what is right or wrong with it and make suggestions for improvement or change.

It's part of a three-month study of the navy's personnel structure by a four-man committee of officers under Rear-Admiral W. M. Landmore, flag officer Pacific Coast.

"We're prepared to hear them," the admiral said. "In fact, the response has been excellent. We've received 30 briefs from this command."

Suggestions or complaints must be presented in the form of a paper, he said, and must bear a certified signature.

Purpose of the survey, which will take the group across Canada, is to find ways of meeting the changing technical needs of today.

The present personnel structure is based on the 1957 report of Rear-Admiral E. P. Tisdall of Victoria, the admiral said.

"Some phases of the structure have been in use five years," he said. "Others are just starting."

to examine the structure against a factual background.

"We can then decide if it is working or not and if not, what adjustments should be made."

"The first part was to get the factual background from the records. Now we have begun interviewing officers responsible for the various aspects of personnel, at the schools in Naden and in the training depot," the admiral said.

"We will then move to Vancouver, Toronto, Hamilton, Montreal and Halifax and repeat the performance."

The study started early in March and will continue to June 1.

"We will then report to the naval board," the admiral said. "Our studies so far give us great confidence in the structure we've got."

Members of the admiral's committee are Commodore Ralph Hennessey, in charge of personnel, Atlantic Coast; Commodore Donald McLeure, supply, Ottawa; Capt. J. A. Lynch, electrical officer, Ottawa, and Capt. Richard Lehr, operational cadet training, Esquimalt.

After Accident

Colwood Bus Ruled Off Road

Puzzled patrons of the Veteran Stages Ltd. lined the route from Metchoin and Colwood into Victoria yesterday wondering where the bus was to take them to town.

It was undergoing repairs for faulty brakes after being ruled off the road by Colwood RCMP following a minor accident in Saanich at Trans-Canada Highway and Burnside.

POLICE STATION

Police were not called to the accident scene but the driver of the car came to the Saanich police station to register a complaint.

Police got in touch with the RCMP who radioed their highway patrol car to check the bus. It was stopped with 30 people aboard at Colwood Corner and the brakes were checked.

Brian Sylvester, owner of the stage company, said one of the company's two buses continued to provide service to Langford.

MAYBE TODAY

Colwood and Metchoin routes were without service after RCMP checked the bus. Mr. Sylvester said he hoped the second bus would be in service today.

"I'd like to shut the whole thing down," he told a reporter. "That's how I feel personally. I'm sick and tired of trying to keep the (bus line) running."

WORKING ALL OUT

He added: "I don't want to make any further comment. I'm working all out to get the repairs done as soon as possible."

Colwood RCMP detachment Sgt. Robert Rogers said:

"As far as we are concerned this vehicle was found to be not quite up to mechanical standards. It is being used for public transportation and we could not permit it to operate under the existing conditions."

CAN GO BACK

"As soon as repairs are made it can go back on the road."

Sgt. Rogers said officials of Veterans Stages had been previously warned to carry out necessary repairs to the vehicle.

The bus' brake officer said the brakes' brake system was losing 12 pounds a minute with the engine off and the bus had no emergency brake operating.

MP's Plea

'Be Ready For Disaster'

OTTAWA (CP)—T. C. Douglas, leader of the New Democratic Party, urged the government Friday to set up machinery for prompt action when civil disasters strike.

Mr. Douglas told the Commons the federal government's role in meeting a disaster is limited until a plan is worked out with the provinces, municipalities, charitable organizations and others. This delay could be avoided if some machinery was devised for automatic action in providing assistance to disaster areas.

U.S. AID FAST

Speaking during Commons study of the spending estimates of the finance department, Mr. Douglas noted Canada was able to offer help to the U.S. in dealing with the Alaska earthquake, but still is unable to step directly into the tidal wave emergency that resulted in British Columbia.

Resources Minister Laing, liaison man in the cabinet for the provincial flood, said the B.C. information on which the federal government can base a contribution will be ready in a week. If the province did not ask for a contribution, Mr. Laing would recommend that a substantial federal offering be made.

READY IN FUTURE

Mr. Douglas said he wanted legislative authority to be ready in future so that federal aid could be moved into an area speedily once a province designated it as a disaster zone.

Harold Winch (NDP, Vancouver East) said it was "pretty darn rotten" that on the latest information available the aid for the stricken B.C. area amounts to only $122,000—$12,000 of that from various sources, $50,000 from the provincial government and $50,000 from a private company.

Jury Out For Night In Seattle

SEATTLE (AP)—The federal court jury deliberating the fate of 51-year-old John Wasylenchuk went to bed without reaching a decision Friday night.

The case was thrown into confusion when juror William Roper said he was ill shortly after the jury began its deliberations of the murder and robbery charges against the Canadian parolee.

Judge William Lindberg advised an alternate, but it was then discovered that alternates may not be seated in a federal case after the jury has received the case.

SENT FOR DOCTOR

The only solution seemed to be to declare a mistrial or to get both sides to agree to an 11-man jury. The defence declined the latter solution and Judge Lindberg sent for a doctor to examine Roper.

The doctor gave Roper a penicillin shot and pronounced him able to continue.

Vital Moment in History

By JOSEPH MACSWEEN
Canadian Press

The new malevolent turn in relations between the Soviet Union and Red China dramatizes what is surely an epochal moment in history.

The rush of events in the last 10 years has brought the world to a watershed of change in which political dogmas are being challenged everywhere.

British observers were deeply impressed by the recent speech of J. William Fulbright, chairman of the United States Senate foreign relations committee, who said his own country is clinging to old myths in the face of new realities.

Perhaps they are even more impressed by reaction to the speech, which indicated that some of what Fulbright said—particularly regarding Russia—is regarded as commonplace in the U.S. except in official pronouncements.

They are aware that Fulbright wasn't speaking for the U.S. administration—it would be more true to say he was speaking to it—but, as one periodical put it:

"The nub of what Mr. Fulbright had to say about relations with European communism—namely, that the Communist countries are diverse and need to be treated with discrimination—had been said previously in February and March by Mr. Dean Rusk, the secretary of state, and at least two other officials of the state department."

'Unite Against Red China'

Khrushchev Fights Back

BUDAPEST (Reuters) — Soviet Premier Khrushchev has called for unity in the international Communist movement in the struggle against what he called Red Chinese "distortion." (See also Page 3.)

Khrushchev, addressing an audience in Budapest's State Opera House, accused the Communist Chinese leadership of trying to revise policy documents worked out jointly by the international movement.

The documents to which the Soviet leader referred were agreed upon at the world Communist conferences in Moscow in 1957 and 1960.

MASSIVE REPLY

The reference by Khrushchev to the Sino-Soviet ideological dispute followed the massive reply to Chinese attacks on him and his policies published earlier Friday by the Soviet Communist party newspaper Pravda.

Khrushchev, who is on an official visit to Hungary, said the materials published by Pravda made known the Soviet standpoint.

POLICY DISRUPTIVE

He accused the Chinese of a "disruptive policy" and said the only basis for the struggle against it was to strengthen and consolidate unity among the Communist parties.

Khrushchev said this struggle would certainly lead to a new victory for socialism, which would be of historical significance.

He was glad that in all questions of the international (Com-

Leakey and Homo Habilis Jaw

Giant Leap Into History

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dr. Louis S. B. Leakey, a British anthropologist, announced Friday discovery in East Africa of a new species of primitive man he believes to be the direct ancestor of modern man.

Fossil parts of five individuals were found in Tanganyika by Dr. Leakey and his wife Mary, he said. The discoveries "may rank some day as the most important in our knowledge" of the National Geographic Society, which supports his work.

The new species, he said, is almost 2,000,000 years old and adds about 1,500,000 years to the ancestry of man. He called the new species "homo habilis," meaning a man able to do things.

Leakey said it now seems likely the species of present-day man, known as homo sapiens, is more likely to have evolved in Africa from homo habilis than from some of the other hominids of the pithecanthropus type in the Far East.

SENATOR BLOCKS JOBLESS BENEFITS

OTTAWA (UPI) — One determined senator Friday refused to give unanimous consent to pass a government bill to replenish the unemployment insurance fund, which will go bankrupt this weekend.

Senator Gratian O'Leary, the fiery Irish Conservative from Ottawa, told the Senate he would not allow passage of a special appropriation bill sent up from the Commons earlier in the day.

Members in the Commons had quickly passed the bill, which covers $131,000,000 of the $241,000,000 final supplementary estimates they had debated all week.

HOPE DASHED

But Senator O'Leary dashed their hopes for quick Senate approval and assent last night. The Senate does not meet again until 8 p.m. Monday.

A labor department spokesman made it clear that, since the bill was not made law Friday, the Unemployment Insurance Commission would have no money to pay benefits Monday.

FROM ALL SIDES

Of the $131,000,000 total, up to $35,000,000 could be earmarked for the fund.

The Senate vibrated with criticism from all sides throughout the week because it was forced to sit idle during its Easter holidays while the Commons argued over the final supplementary estimates of last year.

Criticism continued Friday as once more it was asked to waive its rules and give immediate passage to the bill.

THREE DAYS

Under normal conditions the Senate would require two days' notice for second reading of a bill and another day for third and final reading.

To operate any other way requires unanimous consent from all senators.

Senator O'Leary had given notice Tuesday he would resist further Commons attempts to treat the upper chamber as a "messenger boy" and a "mere gramophone" for the Commons.

SHORTEST SPEECH

The Commons proceedings of the past week had insulted and degraded parliament, he said.

Giving the shortest speech of the afternoon, he rose simply to say "I will not give consent to passage of this bill tonight on third reading."

He rejected an appeal from government Senate leader J. J. Connolly to reconsider his stand.

OWN ANNOYANCE

Sensor Connolly, who expressed his own annoyance at the way the Senate was treated by the Commons and kept waiting around all week long, said: "I think we all admire the stand he proposed to take on behalf of the Senate."

But he asked Senator O'Leary to reconsider in view of the urgency of approving the money for the unemployment fund.

Rose to seek unanimous consent, Senator O'Leary stood again and said: "No."

Sensor Connolly promised the senators he would urge his colleagues in the government to see if Commons rules can be altered so all money supply bills could be dealt with in the

Meeting Today

Blue Monday For 46,000?

OTTAWA (CP) — Labor Minister MacEachen scheduled an emergency meeting today with the Unemployment Insurance Commission to consider ways of paying an estimated 46,000 insurance claims Monday.

Laval Fortier, chief commissioner of the Unemployment Insurance Commission, later told reporters some, and possibly all, the 46,000 claimants paid in cash at local unemployment offices may not receive their money Monday.

Claims range between $5 a week for a single person and $36 a week for a married claimant. Those slated to receive money Monday would normally receive a payment for two weeks.

Mr. Fortier said it may be possible to make some on all of the claims for cash payments by delaying the mailing of cheques to those paid in that way until after final parliamentary action on the government's money bill.

Labor Minister MacEachen said at a hastily summoned press conference with Mr. Fortier it is likely some claimants will be unable to get their money Monday. But, if the bill received its final approval and royal assent Monday night, the delay would be only one day.

Mr. Fortier said the unemployment insurance fund—maintained by contributions from employers, employees and the federal government—needs an estimated $1,500,000 or $2,000,000 Monday. Some money still may be held by the five regional treasury offices which would provide a precise figure at 6 a.m. PST Monday.

Jittery Alaskans Run Into Streets

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Anchorage, heavily damaged by an earthquake a week ago, was shaken sharply Friday by another tremor that sent jittery residents streaming into the streets.

Police said they had no immediate reports of injuries and said a quick survey showed areas which had suffered heavily a week ago apparently escaped further damage.

Valdez, devastated a week ago, reported the quake was felt there but it was a light tremor with no injuries or further damage reported.

The University of Washington said the shock measured 7.5 on its Richter scale, making it the largest of more than 50 aftershocks since the Good Friday tremor. The destructive quake hit 8.7 on the scale.

The latest casualty figures for the entire quake area show 128 dead or missing and presumed dead.

And Now It's Wind

KODIAK (AP) — One fishing boat was sunk, another capsized and 16 forced onto the rocks Thursday night when a vicious wind struck this town, still stunned from the effects of Friday's earthquake and tidal wave.
